Waterway Agency's Gundelach charged with OUI

Refusing breath test takes away boating privilege, making it difficult to perform job as dredging supervisor

By JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

A May 31 boating accident, and a subsequent charge of Operation of a boat while Under the Influence, may spell the end of Fox Waterway Agency Roy Gundelach's tenure as the agency's dredging-excavation field manager.

The Lake County Sheriff's Office's Marine Unit reports making the charge in the course of investigating an incident occurring close to 11 p.m. on Lake Marie, in which a 24-foot boat Gundelach was operating reportedly overran a smaller vessel at anchor, injuring its two occupants.

According to the police, a 16-foot vessel owned and operated by Jeffrey Vincent of Chicago was overrun by a 24-foot fiberglass cuddy-cabin boat operated by Gundelach, causing injuries to both Vincent and a passenger, Lisa Dolan, also of Chicago.

Following the collision, Gundelach returned to assist Vincent and Dolan. They were taken to Webb's Marina and there met by members of Antioch's Rescue Squad. The two were taken to St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan, where they were treated for cuts, scrapes, bruises and other soft tissue injuries and released.

Vincent's boat had sustained substantial damage and was taking on water. It was towed to the Sand Bar resort by George Villa, the operator of a boat present at the time of the collision.

At Webb's Marina, police reported the odor of alcohol on Gundelach's breath and that he had difficulty retrieving requested equipment during a boarding inspection.

Police added that after he was found unable to perform field sobriety tests as requested, Gundelach, 50, was charged with Operation Under

Hat Trick for Antioch

Downtown project includes wetlands restoration, new development, and revitalization of the existing area

By KENNETH PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Downtown Antioch scored the final shot of its improvement efforts last week with receipt of a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers wetland permit. The Corps wetland permit allows Antioch to proceed with its share of downtown area development.

The village is developing a 4.5-acre wetlands restoration project which ultimately creates a skating, picnic, and education area along Sequoit Creek.

Community Development Director Claude LeMere said, "With this project you have got new development, and you have got restoration of wetlands, which is preservation of heritage, and then you have got the revitalization of an existing area."

The Corps wetland permit allows Antioch to proceed with its contribution towards downtown area development. The Sequoit Creek area project includes the restoration of wetlands, the construction of a bandshell with festival picnicking area, and creation of a skating pond with a warming shelter.

The second part of the project is the refurbishment of the open area east of the downtown business district. This will include: burying utility cables, constructing a new road, paving behind east side buildings, screening trash collection areas, creating new public parking, and color-coordinating the appearance of the backs of all buildings.

The first part of the project, new commercial development, is already well on its way to completion. It is the construction of the Centegra Health System Medical Office Building. According to William Clow of Centegra, "We will be offering physician practices and a variety of other health care services." It is expected to open in July.

The village project represents an estimated $150,000 to $175,000 investment, although donated services and volunteer time make any estimate subjective.

The village has not received bids and cost estimates for all work that the project will require. For example, the village share of burying Commonwealth Edison power lines is $36,000, but the costs to bury entertainment cable and telephone lines is not yet known. Local excavators will donate time and machinery to dig a peninsula and fill the bandshell area to make it larger. Centegra will dig ponds and connecting channels. The project is a mix of many ideas and efforts.

LeMere is quite insistent that the

'The folks that were born and raised here are the real heartbeat of this community... They are the ones that pass on that feeling of what Antioch is to the newcomers.'

Respect for history guides new projects

Some of the new Antioch development proposals are ideas from 1954. Some are even older. It is a deliberate part of the strategy to keep Antioch... well, Antioch.

"I try to listen to village residents born and raised here, and absorb and visualize what the community used to look like, where the activity spots used to be for the kids" Development Director Claude LeMere said. "I try to combine all that with our projects as new development goals and rehabilitation of certain areas. That is a key to me."

"This restoration of the back of the buildings was first started in 1954 by the business people and the village," LeMere noted. Today it is a major element of the village's redevelopment efforts in association with restoration of the Sequoit Creek wetlands.

Another example of historical guidance is the ice skating and environmental education opportunities created by the Bandshell area. "I had been told by many of the old-timers that Sequoit Creek was an area where the kids used to go down and play in the creek and spear fish and that there was an ice-skating pond back there years and years ago," LeMere said. "It looked to me to be an ideal situation to satisfy the needs of everyone in the community — to have new commercial growth (Centegra Health System Medical Office Building), to restore forever the (wetlands) area for the folks to remember, and to bring it back to what it was in the 1920s and 1930s."

For LeMere, the wetlands restoration project is also an opportunity to teach children about their world. "We can bring the children down and use it like an outdoor classroom, teach them about the wetlands, take them down into the wetlands, show them the different types of vegetation and how a wetland works," he said.

Previous work by community groups lead to the current restoration project.

"The Community Action Now group worked with the Village in the mid-1980s and through their efforts, hired S.B. Friedman and Company to do a market study of the downtown," LeMere said. That study identified the desirability of a medical, professional facility in the area east of the downtown business district.

"We have some tremendous physicians here, but there was that need to take that next step, because

Library Friends say thanks

The Antioch Library Friends would like to thank the community for their generous support of the Annual Used Book Sale, which was held May 17. The book sale was a huge success, with the Friends raising over $1,300.

The Antioch District Library will use the funds raised to purchase new materials. The library receives donated books, some of which are added to the collection, and the rest of which are sold at the Used Book Sale to raise more money for the library. This year, the Friends had the most successful sale ever, which pleased Co-president Nancy Brown.

"Mike and I are so happy with the outcome of this year's book sale. When I arrived in the parking lot of the library 10 minutes before the sale was scheduled to start, and I saw the lot was full, and then people started lining up, I thought, 'Wow! This is going to be great!'

"We sold over 3,000 books, and there were crowds the whole day. We really appreciate all of the help our volunteers gave. And, we really appreciate all of the people who bought books. I think the books were a bargain. Some of the books were brand new! It was very heartening to see so many people at the sale. We'd just like to thank everyone who came."

The Antioch Library Friends would also like to thank their volunteers who helped set up and sort books, as well as the entire staff, who helped out in numerous ways.

the community was growing, and to reach out for those specialists that were not available to us right here in town." As a result, Centegra was encouraged to locate in Antioch.

"The folks that were born and raised here are the real heartbeat of this community," said LeMere. "They know what it's all about. They are the ones that pass on that feeling of what Antioch is to the newcomers who come into the community."

the influence and that later, during processing at Lake County Jail, refused a Breathalyzer test. Based on the statements of witnesses, Vincent was cited for failing to display an anchor light and police reported that the incident remains under investigation.

Fox Waterway Chairman Dr. William Dam acknowledged that the charge against Gundelach was very serious and that there was "serious consideration, even now" of requesting a letter of resignation should the charge be borne out.

Even if Gundelach is acquitted, his refusal to take a breath test means an automatic one-year suspension of boating privileges and Dam said this could provide the Agency with "considerable logistical problems" in allowing the field supervisor to keep his job.

Dam anticipated the issue to be discussed at the Waterway Agency Board meeting of June 7.

Gundelach was hired by the Agency on April 24 at an annual salary of $40,000 and a court date has been set for July 3.

HAT TRICK: Downtown project includes wetland restoration

Implementation of this project be recognized as a multiple party endeavor.

"This would not be possible if it were not for the cooperation of all the property owners who are here today," he said. "This is a very difficult project to coordinate. It is an expensive project for both the village and property owners. We have had numerous meetings and each meeting has brought property owners closer and closer together in order to complete this project."

The restored wetland area and business owner refurbishments will give the community a new activity center. Fasto of Antioch, the Arts and Crafts Fair, and outdoor concerts in a Ravinia-like setting are some of the old community events for the new setting. An outdoor theater and a pond on which to skate add new opportunities for events near the village business core. LeMere notes that the restored wetlands provide a new education area for community children to learn about wetland plant and biological species.

There is no detailed plan or artist's rendering of a bandshell proposal. "We have pledges of private dollars for the bandshell," said LeMere. "The backside of the bandshell is expected to include an area where winter skaters can warm themselves near a fireplace. The bandshell will be large enough to accommodate the Lakes Area Community Band, about 50 musicians."

Property owners along the edge of the project are expected to create an association to help them manage their common interests, such as snow plowing, asphalt seal coating, common garbage storage areas, and further building refurbishments. LeMere described the group's formation as evidence of "the spirit that Antioch is all about."

rectors. Only 260 raffle tickets will be sold. Top prize is $10,000, and there will be 10 drawings for $200 prizes. The prizes are awarded July 4 at Williams Park. The money is used by CAN to finance downtown projects, such as the four community directories that were recently installed downtown.

Parents of Rotary Youth exchange student Makiko Naka arrived from Japan in time to watch their daughter graduate from Antioch Community High School May 28. She is a high honors student and concert pianist. She returns to Japan in mid-July.

The Rotarians have a Harley-Davidson Sportster 1200 up for raffle. Only 400 of the $50 tickets will be sold. They are available at State Bank, First National, and from members of Rotary. For a cycle this powerful, they have previously sold out their supply of tickets according to past president Ron Becker. The Harley is red. Funds raised in the raffle help Rotarian programs, such as Antioch student scholarships or computer equipment (donated with other Rotary chapters) for the Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma.

Beautification of the downtown Antioch business district has been underway during the past few weeks. There were memorial Day plantings. Later in the week, Beautification Committee members filled barrels along Main Street with more flowers and plants. The vegetation creates a warm and inviting appearance.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Ken Patchen at 223-8161, ext. 131 or e-mail: edh@ind.com."

Party honors chief's retirement

The Village of Antioch welcomes Police Chief Chuck Miller to retirement at a community-wide party June 8 from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall at 75 North Avenue.

The retirement party will include hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. People can make $10 checks payable to Antioch Village Hall Miller Retirement. The donation will include hors d'oeuvres and a contribution towards a gift. There will be a special program at the reception from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m., although people will be able to linger longer.

Chuck Miller was with the Village of Antioch for 30 years. He served as Police Chief for 20 years. His service to the community is the longest of any police officer and is the longest as Chief.

A life-long Antioch resident, he joined the department in 1967 after serving in Vietnam. A juvenile officer in 1971, promoted to Sergeant in 1974, he was finally appointed Police Chief in 1976.

Reservations can be made with Carol Rowe at the Antioch Village Hall, 395-1000.

Two Chambers to mix after garden dedication

Two Lake County Chambers of Commerce will have a business mixer at Serendipity Bed and Breakfast on Stateline Road, June 19, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Both the Lake County Chamber of Commerce and the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry will meet after the dedication of a children's memorial garden located at the Bed and Breakfast.

Diane Falk, Innkeeper, will serve as host for the Chamber mixer.

The Children's Memorial Garden is an 11-acre sanctuary for butterflies, hummingbirds, and moths. The garden is "dedicated to pediatric caregivers as a result of the wonderful and loving care" Eric Paul Falk received 20 years ago at Chicago's Children's Memorial Hospital for a brain tumor.

"It's dedicated to the living even though it's a memorial garden," explains Diane Falk.

She intends the sanctuary to become a focus of future environmental education. She said, "At our gardens, we are creating a permanent environmental education resource center" for teachers to use as an open-air classroom. Plants, flowers, shrubs, and trees attractive to butterflies and hummingbirds have been planted in the gardens.

Learning of Medieval Age gives Grass Lake students an opportunity for jest and drama

With fools and kings and ladies and plays, the sixth grade students of Grass Lake School finished off their studies of 1381 English history for 1997.

"I think it makes learning more interesting to the students," said social studies teacher Carolyn Adams. The program included other student work taught by art teacher Carol Sackchewsky and language arts teacher Raymond Liss.

"We tried to team teach as much as possible," Adams explained. Teachers feel that the students "respond well to it. They love to dress up; they love to have us dress up," she said.

And dress up is what everyone does.

There were lords and ladies in their class finery. Knights, a Friar, an Archbishop, an executioner, yeomen, and peasants were in abundant evidence as third, fourth, and fifth graders served as an audience. Also nearby were parents Heidi Gilday, Phyllis Kozlowski, Paula Maniscalco, Kelly Sweeting, and Mary Theel. They had helped with costumes and food.

Entertainment and education was provided with a play and the presentation of reports written by students. The play was "The Peasant Revolt of 1381."

It was followed by court jesters who brought laughter to the assembled crowds. Medieval history reports were presented on such subjects as: Medieval Drama by Ann Marie Abel; Medieval Clothing by Amber Dunfrund; Medieval Homes by Dina Izenstark; Medieval Drama by Tim McLaughlin; Medieval Painting by Katie Mason; and The Renaissance by Kristina Mosier.

Traffic stops lead to drug arrests

Traffic stops by Antioch Police officers have led to two recent arrests for possession of cannabis.

Bryon D. Jewell, 25, of Round Lake was arrested for possession of cannabis on May 24 at 9:39 p.m. He was driving a 1984 Ford near Route 83 and Lake Street when he allegedly ran a red light.

During the traffic stop, the Antioch police officer noticed a clear plastic bag with suspected cannabis on the floor board of the passenger side of the car. While Jewell extracted his driver's license from a gym bag, he allegedly "pulled out a clear plastic baggie containing approximately 1 to 2 grams of suspected cannabis" according to police reports. The officer confiscated the green leafy substance for evidence.

Antioch Police officers arrested Thomas B. Wojcicki, 24, of Wauconda on May 30 at 12:13 a.m. during a traffic stop for an active arrest warrant by the Lake County Sheriff's Department and for possession of cannabis.

He was arrested on Main Street at Poplar Street in a 1981 Pontiac. Wojcicki had an active Lake County Sheriff's active warrant for theft over $5,000 to which a 10 percent bond applied. The warrant's validity was confirmed by Antioch police with Lake County officials.

At the Antioch police station, officers found a smoking pipe containing a residue in a right front coat pocket. In a left pants pocket, a clear plastic bag containing a green leafy substance suspected by police to be cannabis was found.

Wojcicki could not post bond and was transferred to the Lake County Jail on May 30 at 5:19 a.m. He is scheduled to appear in court on June 25 at 9 a.m. in Grayslake.

Golf outing gaining ground

"It's a blast! Outings are fun to play at," says Garnet Carney, secretary for the District 34 Educational Foundation.

To make it fun, the committee planning the June 20 Spring Valley Gold Course Outing will include traditional and special events and prizes in the mix of attractions.

There will be such traditional fare as the 50/50 raffle, a hole-in-one opportunity for a vehicle, free sleeves of golf balls and other donated items, a blind bogey, and a circle in which to land a golf ball.

A special feature will be Pickard China crafted awards for distribution.

There will be prizes for male and female low scores, longest drives, longest putts, and closest to pin. There will an award for the highest score, also, regardless of gender.

Participants in the golf outing will play 18 holes of golf, have a golf cart, and will be able to attend the Hawaiian Luau Pig Roast at Williams Park afterwards. However, other people who wish to support the Foundation may pay $20 to attend only the Luau. There will be dancing under the stars. Teachers will be able to make arrangements for tickets to the Luau with the Principals of their school.

St. Peter's School Board President George Freeman presents Dr. Elaine M. Schuster, Superintendent of Schools, Archdiocese of Chicago, with a photograph of St. Peter's school children. The photograph represents a symbol of Catholic identity.

Archdiocese leader meets St. Peters students

Superintendent of Schools for the Archdiocese of Chicago, Dr. Elaine M. Schuster, met with St. Peters Catholic Church school students to lend witness of their education achievements. Students assembled to present a program of musical affirmation related to the 'possibilities' of career choice and life course.

"Whatever you choose to do," Schuster stated in a talk to the school, "do it with all sorts of enthusiasm and gusto. And, do it knowing that God loves you and that you have gifts to give to everyone around you."

School Board President George Freeman presented Schuster with a photograph of St. Peters school children. The picture was a symbol of Catholic identity, Freeman explained.

St. Peters' school is one of 325 Catholic Schools in the Archdiocese, which includes Lake and Cook County. There are 135,000 students in the system.

Shorter returns to 5K Run, July 4

Frank Shorter, 1972 Olympic Marathon Gold Medalist, will return July 4 to run in the Run for Freedom sponsored by State Bank of The Lakes. "We had such positive feedback from everyone on his visit last year that we decided to have him back," said organizer Eric Olson.

Shorter will discuss running and meet with people both before and after the Run for Freedom in which he will participate. Last year "he reflected on running and his visit out here. He may come back earlier since he liked Antioch so much," said Olson. Last year he discussed ideas for preparing to run and for training.

The Run for Freedom will start at Williams Park near the Scout House at 8:30 a.m. People may register to run or to walk the course until 8:25 a.m. There is an early $9 pre-registration fee, or a $12 day-of-the-run registration fee. The fee covers the cost of the run, a t-shirt, and water and fruit at the finish. All funds raised eventually are returned to organizations, people, or projects in the Village of Antioch.

Awards will be given to the top male and female finishers and medals will be given to the first place finishers in the following age cohorts: 14 and under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, and 60 and over. Call State Bank of The Lakes for information, 395-2700.

"The thing that was different last year," said Olson, "was that we had a lot more walkers" than runners. He says that this makes it a family event because some people may just prefer to walk the course. Last year, some people even pushed strollers.

Volunteers are needed to help manage the run. People who wish to volunteer can call Celeste Hafner at State Bank of The Lakes.

Line dancing is still around

Well it has been a while and I was ever so gently reminded that it was time once again to refresh everybody's memory on the Line Dance epidemic that is sweeping through Lake County. Now that summer is here and bathing suit season has arrived, a good way to take off a couple of those unwanted pounds may be to join the gang up at the Triple J Steak House for a night of dancing and camaraderie. Now these are some serious dancin' folks that come out on Thursday night but they are always ready to have a good time and help a new-comer learn the steps. As always the talented Louise Butterbaugh will be on hand to host, instruct, and encourage all the new people, as well as the old stand-by's. There is a nominal admission price, but where else can you go that is so close to home to have a great evening, get a good work out and share in a lot of laughs. The Triple J Steak House is located just a hop, skip and a kick over the state line on Route 83 and you can bet that Old Retired One will be on hand to shuffle away the night.

Is There No End

Well it looks like there is no end to the Teenie Weenie Beanie Craze. Rumors are flying all over the county that those little creatures are going to reappear sometime in July. Now I have heard two different versions of this rumor. One lady told me that the original ten were going to be re-released and another lady told me that 13 new ones are being produced for the promotion. Either way, we are in for another frenzy. I called McDonald's Corporate Headquarters to confirm the rumor, because hey isn't that what reporters do?? (Actually I called because my sister-in-law, who was a prime example of the crazed parents snatching up Happy Meals all over the county for those little bean-filled animals, was consumed by her obsession and the thought of 13 new ones coming out was more than even our close family ties could bear.) Well the person that answered the phone when I called switched me to about nine different people before I finally got a hold of someone who seem to want to talk to me. This person admitted that 13 new babies were being introduced, but they were regular Beanies, not Teenie Weenie Beanies. She neither confirmed nor denied my information on the ten being brought back. Her only comment was to say that nothing has come down from the higher echelons of the company regarding this matter but anything was possible. So what does that tell you—I will let you decide for yourself. And for any of you who are wearied by the whole obsession, you might want to choose a different fast food establishment to frequent during the month of July. This all brings to mind the saying: "This to shall pass," which brings to mind the thought—not soon enough. And so goes another "Jingle From Pringle"... don't forget to call 395-6364.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Sons of Lake County do well at State Meet

The track season has officially come to a close for the Lake County boys, and those that made it to the State Meet put forth their best effort. Although you may not see their names as state champs or record setters, they did earn the respect of all who witnessed their performances.

Not to be forgotten in all this track hoopla is the Boys State Tennis Tournament, which also featured local boys who showcased their talent on that state level.

This is the time of year when the competition becomes intense, and the level of play is heightened: it's State time! If you love high school sports, or just have a passing fancy in them, I highly suggest attending the State Meet/Tournament of your choice to see high school sports at their best. The last two weeks have seen the track and tennis teams take the stage, and now it's time for the other sports, like baseball, softball, soccer and volleyball to take their turn and show their stuff in a competition between the best of the best.

Congratulations to Romell Overton of Warren, who took third at the State Meet in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles in 38.91; Thor Solverson of Lake Zurich, who placed sixth in the discus with a toss of 159-11; and Andrew Willgess of Libertyville, who finished 12th in the 1600-meters in 4:32.90. Also, Karl Sloss took third place in the State Tennis Meet as he defeated Jason Gunther from Galesburg 6-1, 6-0 in his final match. Well done boys!!

Law enforcement officers will be carrying the torch for the Illinois Special Olympics to help raise funds for the athletes. The torch run will come through Lake County, starting Sunday, June 8 at 6:15 a.m. from Six Flags Great America as the eighth leg of the run. Last year the torch run raised $488,500, and this year they are hoping to break the $500,000 mark.

Ryne Sandberg, the Chicago Cubs' second baseman, will be appearing at Bloomingdale's Old Orchard Center Thursday, June 12th from 7-8 p.m. on behalf of Perry Ellis. Sandberg will be available to meet fans and sign autographs on the first floor of the Skokie Bloomingdale's store. This is a great opportunity to meet a Cubs legend, and for more information, please call (847) 6757-5200, ext. 2284.

Auto racing fans, listen up! The number 10 Tide Racing Car will be on display at you local Jewel/Osco in Mundelein, Libertyville and Gurnee. The car will appear at the 1300 Milwaukee location, in Libertyville, June 26 from 10:30-2:00 p.m.; at the 1501 Lake location, in Mundelein, June 26 from 3:30-7:00 p.m.; at the 6509 W. Grand Ave. location, in Gurnee, June 27 from 3:30-7:00 p.m.

Finally, please call me or send in any photos, stories or story ideas that you might have for me. Also, if you or anyone you know would like to appear in our Sidelines feature, please call me and we can work out the details for a future issue.

Antioch softball wins Regional

Sequoit girls face strong Mundelein team in Barrington Sectional

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

Antioch earned a spot in the Barrington softball sectional final against a familiar foe.

Antioch (27-11) faces Mundelein for the third time this year as the Sequoits captured the Johnsburg Regional with a 3-1 win over Woodstock. The Sequoits and Mustangs clash at 1:30 p.m. June 7 at Barrington's Field of Dreams.

"It was another exciting game. We spotted them a run in the first inning, but answered with three. Each game, someone new steps up," said ACHS coach Steve Wapon.

Lead-off hitter Laura Deutsch singled, Nicole Langley doubled, Jamie Silarski singled and Kristen Scopel's two RBI single accounted for the three runs. Silarski beat the tag attempt of the Woodstock catcher with a great slide, said Wapon. Much of the offense came with two out.

"We have had our share of two-out hits," said Wapon.

On the other end, Silarski dominated the middle innings, retiring nine straight Blue Streak batters. She finished with three strikeouts and no walks in a five-hitter.

"I was happy she was able to keep their hitters off balance. The significance of this is we started the year 0-6 and no one believed we would contend for the conference title. We shared it and won a regional title," said Wapon.

Antioch rallied for a 4-3 win over Mundelein in Antioch but lost two days later for a split in the NSC. Both teams shared the crown.

"We have played some sound defense. Offense gets the glamour, but defense wins championships," said Wapon.

Mundelein advanced to the June 7 battle with a 3-2 win over Stevenson behind pitcher Katie Prezell. Marsha Letto and Jill Wollberg continued to be the hitting stars, with triples. Mundelein overcame two errors to win its 29th game.

Late surge propels Antioch into Regionals

Winning three of its final four regular-season games gave Antioch momentum and a .500 record heading into the Waukegan Regional.

The Sequoils end the regular season 16-16 following a split with Warren and a sweep of Hersey. After a 2-0 win over Warren, the Blue Devils won a 13-9 slugfest. Hersey was an Antioch victim twice, 11-4 and 7-5 May 24.

The win over Warren was made possible by steady defense as junior Mike Nielsen kept the home team at bay.

"I felt I just had to trust the infield. I was getting the slider going," said Nielsen.

Nielsen improved his pitching record to 7-7, then saw it improve to over .500 with a 5-2 win over Grayslake in the first round of the Waukegan Regional.

Antioch made the most of its offense. The key hit was a two-run double by Erick Brubash. That scored Stu Johnson and Chris Groth, who had first-inning singles.

Warren threatened throughout the game. Matt Tincher and Tim Zorich had two-out singles in the fifth inning, but a pop out ended the frame.

There were also two singles in the seventh, but a flyball ended the rally, and the game.

"Nielsen changed speeds well," said Warren coach Dar Townsend.

"We are starting to sting the bats real well. We have a lot better attitude," said ACHS coach Paul Petty.

The Waukegan Regional semifinals were May 31 at Bowen Park, and the finals were Monday, June 2.

Young Sequoits test Carmel in Sectional

Antioch girls soccer can't hold off Corsairs, fall 2-1

A difficult lesson, yes.

Almost painful for the young soccer players who don the scarlet and gray of Antioch each and every match.

But when Antioch's squad reaches beyond the second round of a sectional in future years, perhaps one long Tuesday in late May will be remembered.

Carmel outlasted the Sequoits in the penalty kick round as Jill Denoma sent the Corsairs to the sectional semifinals at Mundelein with a 2-1 win.

"We played hard and we had the lead for most of the match, but we let up in the final 1:40. We led in the penalty kick, but we could not finish it off. It is not the way we wanted the season to end, but it was a match with two good teams," said ACHS coach Charles Trout.

Jamie Wismer scored the Antioch (12-8-3 overall) goal. She has 13 goals in her sophomore season as she had two in a 5-0 first-round win over Waukegan.

Freshmen Kristin Gamlin also scored twice against Waukegan. She has eight goals in 11 varsity games.

"Both of them put pressure on the opposition. Wismer had a lot of break-aways and does a good job being in the position where she needs to be," said Trout.

Sarah Richardson also scored a goal against Waukegan.

Nicki Krawl and Carrie Gofron had the penalty kick goals against Carmel after two overtimes. They are the only seniors among the starters.

Junior goalie Kristen Mirdonski had several good saves against Carmel.

Trout is optimistic about the future, beginning with a summer league at New Trier.

Ruth Warren acts as Mayday's eyes when she is working with him. Mayday, a 13-year-old Appaloosa, went blind about a year and a half ago.

'The last thing I want to hear is about a horse going down.'

Ultimate trust

By CLAUDIA M. LENART
Regional Editor

She ascends from standing on the ground to being seated on the horse in one quick and fluid movement. Soon, she's off trotting or cantering, no saddle, no bridle, just a halter.

Ruth Warren, 20, of Antioch, is surely a skilled horsewoman. But it isn't just her equestrian skills which allow her to ride this Appaloosa gelding with few props and such ease; it's her ability to communicate with the horse as a partner and guide it along. This particular gelding, Mayday, is blind.

The image of Ruth riding bareback with only a halter, evokes one word — natural. Appropriately, the technique she uses is Natural Horsemanship, a method in which the horse and rider communicate by using prey animal psychology. This technique uses positive reinforcement and is against any methods which force a horse into submission.

For Mayday's special needs, the natural technique is a perfect fit.

"It's a process in which you build a bond with a horse — you become the dominant horse," said Ruth.

Ruth has been working with Mayday since March at DreaM-Macres Ranch & Equestrian Center in Spring Grove. In April she gave a demonstration on Natural Horsemanship at the Midwest Horse Fair in Madison, Wis., which is one of the largest equestrian events in the Midwest.

While Mayday may have been the star of the show in April, just a year earlier, his life was on the edge.

Sharon Boatwright, who runs DreaM-Macres along with her husband, Randy Boatwright, received a call from her veterinarian asking if they would be interested in a blind horse. She explained the owner was moving and couldn't find anyone to buy the horse, so she was going to have it euthanized, for fear it might end up at a slaughter house.

"The last thing I want to hear is about a horse going down," said Sharon. "But we knew nothing about training a blind horse."

The Boatwrights, who were known for taking in hard-to-place horses, opened their hearts to another one.

Randy, a horse trainer who started out on his uncle's cattle ranch in New Mexico, started working with Mayday, using the natural technique. He also brought in Dave Seay, a horse trainer from Georgia, for advice on how to work with Mayday.

"He went from being blind and useless to being a well-mannered horse," said Sharon.

Mayday's blindness is a result of "moon blindness." It is thought to be caused by a bacteria, which can reoccur and eventually lead to blindness. The 13-year-old horse was once a champion, being featured on the front cover of Horse Illustrated and in Equine magazines.

Ruth started working with Mayday when she was helping Sharon prepare a youth group for a demonstration on Natural Horsemanship at the Midwest Horse Fair. Ruth thought it would be a good idea to do a demonstration on Mayday, as well.

"Ruth is a very compassionate person, very dedicated; she loves horses and animals and can put him in a position of mutual trust," said Sharon.

As evidence of Ruth's compassion, when they were at the show in Madison, Ruth opted to stay in the barn with Mayday, because he was very frightened. It was the first time, since going blind, he'd been away from the ranch.

"When he went there, he was scared of everything; I was his only sense of security. So even though we had hotel rooms, I stayed with him in the barn," said Ruth.

Ruth said the relationship with Mayday is special, because he truly must trust her to be his eyes. She Sharon Boatwright and her husband, Randy Boatwright, saved Mayday from being euthanized. She shows a photo of Mayday, in his championship days, when he made the cover of Horse Illustrated magazine.

If the moon is out, it must be graduation

Until this past week, I never really thought about the phrase, "in a small town, news travels fast." But last week, I witnessed a perfect demonstration of it. Virtually overnight, everyone I spoke to who lived in either Antioch or a nearby community had heard about the incident at Antioch High School's graduation ceremony. Some folks were shocked, some were amused, and a few twisted souls lamented the fact that they never had the nerve to do such a thing.

However, before I go into the details, I feel it's my duty as a parent to add this disclaimer: "Young people—do not try this at your graduation."

OK—here's what happened. Apparently, one of the students decided that graduation might be a good time to collect on those "15 seconds of fame" that everyone is supposed to get. And so this student proceeded to walk to the stage, receive his diploma, and then for the "coup disgrace," he bent over, pulled down his drawers, and mooned the principal and the entire board of education.

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

As you can imagine, this "cheeky" display put the audience into quite an uproar until the teachers were able to escort the student out of the gym and try to regain whatever dignity was left of the occasion. I guess there's something about a full moon that seems to bring out the "beast" in people, since it was several minutes before the crowd quieted down.

Because my son was one of the graduates at this occasion (though, fortunately, not "the" graduate), I was in the audience to witness the whole thing. And I have to admit that I was not as shocked by the actual "mooning" as I was by the student's poor choice of time and place.

I did, after all, attend high school in the late '60s and early '70s, and back then mooning was almost as common as bellbottom jeans. Hardly a day went by that you could walk through our school parking lot without a car passing by with a wiggling, bare behind prominently displayed through an open side window. It got to the point where we could identify some student without ever seeing their face:

"Let's see—round, tan lines... oh, yea! That was Bob!"

So for me, the mooning incident at my son's high school graduation was a little like "deja vu." And so were the number of students who looked like throwbacks to my generation, with their long hair, bellbottoms, and their fondness for holding up their fingers in the "peace" sign.

But while they seem to have borrowed my generation's clothes, they forgot to borrow our "moon-ing code or honor," which goes something like this:

"Mooning means never having to say you're sorry to the principal and the entire board of education."

It's something to remember for next year.

Donna Abear can also be heard as a guest humorist on WXL 102.3 FM's morning show at 7:10 a.m. on alternate Mondays.

Return to Jurassic anticlimactic

For those dinosaur lovers who reveled in the historic screen scarieness of Steven Spielberg's monumental adventure into the terrors of the Stone Age in the first "Jurassic Park," the sequel "The Lost World: Jurassic Park," will joyfully continue this fascination with really big lizards.

For others, like ourselves, who saw the first prehistoric thriller out of curiosity, treating it as the top-level special effects showcase that it was, the second time around is not only anticlimactic, but a real yucky yawner wherein the stars are so ugly, we spent most of the film looking away from the screen in disgust, not fear.

Though computers have improved and added to the reality, somehow Spielberg's tooth cocktail has gone a little flat, sort of like rereading a murder mystery when you already know that the butler did it.

Oh sure, there are still some ferocious moments when Tyrannosaurus rexes decide to feast on part of the cast, that are rather arresting in a macabre sort of way, but for the most part Jeff Goldblum and his paleontologist main squeeze, played by Julianne Moore, and company, seem almost cartoonish as they run around a tropical Paradise in Central America, studying these giant reptiles with relish. This is the quintessential scary kids' movie!

There's a feeling that "The Lost World," had to be just because it's the thing to do after the megabucks

"Jurassic" made the first time around. The first weekend's record breaking box office receipts are proof of that pudding.

Richard Attenborough, the guy responsible for the first dinosaur colony, gets Goldblum to go back to the park on a research premise.

Again we have the kid-parent relationship, only this time it's Goldblum's daughter who comes along for the ride and is treated to a rumble in the jungle. Goldblum seems to have been crowned disaster films' "good guy amid chaos," who, of course has time to draw closer to his daughter between monster chases.

The unreal size of these realistic "Dinos" make them still appear a little fake despite computer technology, unless we are being treated to a tonsil shot as one roars and flexes its jaws.

We're sure "The Lost World" will make lots of money, mostly on the strength of its predecessor, but the bloom has gone off the Rex, so were giving this PG-13 rated film 2.5 stars out of five stars, and that rating only because of the computerized progression.—By Gloria Davis

Has your doctor had a check up lately?

By ALLAN M. KORN, MD

Sometimes, the assumption is made that a doctor is well-qualified because he or she has a degree from a medical school and a certificate of specialty hanging on the office wall. These papers represent credentials that indicate that a doctor has completed a rigorous training program and passed a set of exams that demonstrate adequate knowledge. Of course, a piece of paper isn't what makes a good doctor. A good doctor must know how to use the knowledge that he or she has acquired. A good doctor must know how to relate to patients and families who are often distraught in the face of illness or injury. A good doctor must know how to manage an office staff so that patients are treated with respect and sensitivity.

So how can you be sure that your physician knows how to be a good doctor? How do you know that your doctor is well-qualified and will be responsive to your needs? For people who have had a long-time relationship with their family physician, this is usually a non-issue. They generally trust their doctor because they know their doctor. For others, developing a long-term relationship with a physician is difficult since many American frequently move to new cities and new jobs. How can they choose and have confidence in a new family doctor? How can they be sure a good doctor will continue to be a good doctor? How can they give their doctor a check up?

While measuring how well patients recover after treatment would seem to be an excellent way to determine if a doctor is good, there are many problems associated with looking only at what are termed "outcomes." Results can be skewed because a doctor might treat a disproportionate number of chronically ill patients or might specialize in hard-to-treat diseases. The cooperation of the patients themselves is often extremely critical to producing successful outcomes. If a patient refuses to take his medicine, how can you blame the doctor? Finally, just attempting to define a "good outcome" is difficult. A good outcome after treatment for a broken leg is different for a 6-year-old and an 86-year old.

However, there are some objective criteria that can give insight into a doctor's practice of medicine. Is the doctor on time for appointments? Are the office and staff clean and neat? Is the staff courteous? Does the doctor return phone calls? Does the doctor keep complete medical records in an up-to-date and legible manner? Does the doctor respond to complaints promptly? Does the doctor provide preventive-care services and counseling? If the doctor goes on vacation, are the doctors who fill in just as good? Can they provide the same level of service? Are his or her patients happy and satisfied?

So when is someone going to develop a systematic review of physician performance that asks those questions? When is someone going to give doctors regular check-ups? Well there is such a system; it's called "rec credentialing."

Rec credentialing is what some health plans do on a regular basis. The process is used to determine if physicians who are in a health plans' provider network are continuing to meet the plan's standards. The doctors must meet objective criteria which are designed to measure the quality of day-to-day health care services delivered by the physician and the physician's staff.

There are outstanding physicians throughout the Chicagoland area who meet or exceed the most rigorous rec credentialing standards. There are some, however, who do not. What can a patient do? Begin by looking at the list of providers in your health plan's network. Most major plans have tough, objective and fair criteria as part of their rec credentialing process.

Rec credentialing is an integral part of health plans that put the patient first, emphasize the prevention of diseases and promote high-quality, efficient health care. We call these health plans HMOs and PPOs. We call this managed care.

Dr. Allan Korn is vice president, medical director of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois.

It almost seems like that as fast as the seasons change, so does the landscape of the Grayslake Community. As many long standing residents would agree, the Lake County landscape has changed, from what used to be vacant land and corn fields to hundreds of new homesites almost overnight. Well, there is one additional renovation that is taking place in downtown Grayslake.

The Hook's Pozzi Window Center, located at 31 S. Seymour, had undergone some remodeling to allow a Grayslake native to open a state-of-the-art Chiropractic and Rehabilitation center.

Dr. John Bouma, a Palmer College graduate, has been working as an associate in the Des Plaines area for some time. He now plans to open his office, the Premier Chiropractic Center, in Grayslake.

Dr. Bouma states, "Grayslake is where I grew up, went to school, and worked for many years. Now, I want to give something back to the town and other surrounding communities. Currently, we are in the build-out phase, and we are looking to open our doors June 16. The office is equipped with two treatment rooms, physical therapy, and x-ray equipment. We can provide treatment and

The AAFP is one of the largest medical specialty organizations in the country, and is was the first to require its members keep up with medical advancements through regular medical education.

Dr. Salazar, who is on staff at Victory Memorial Hospital, Waukegan, has offices at 1170 E. Belvidere Rd., Suite 105, Grayslake.

GSH celebrates opening of medical office

The face of Good Shepherd Hospital has changed with the addition of a new three-story Medical Office Building (MOB) built adjacent to the main hospital. The hospital will host a community open house from 3 to 6 p.m., Wednesday, June 18 for the general public to view the new facility and physicians offices.

Hospital offers alternative to childhood immunizations

A new Illinois law may soon have parents scrambling to their pediatrician's office or Lake Forest Hospital's immunization clinic. Beginning this fall, all pre-schoolers and students entering fifth grade must be immunized against Hepatitis B before beginning school.

According to school nurse Nancy Grabowski, RN, who also works with the Lake County Health Dept., "The Hepatitis B vaccine is a series of three injections given over a six-month period. Most children are now immunized against Hepatitis B at birth. This new law, however, forces parents whose children weren't immunized at birth to get them vaccinated. At least one shot in the three shot series must be administered in order for the pre-schooler or fifth grader to begin school. Each school district will determine how to handle students who have not been immunized by the deadline."

Lake Forest Hospital, as part of the Lake County Community Health Partnership, offers childhood immunizations—including Hepatitis B—at its immunization clinic. If your physician provides these immunizations, it is best to continue there because the continuity of care is enhanced. If you are unable to get them through your physician, immunizations are available for $6 a dose at Lake Forest Hospital's immunization clinic, held on the fourth Saturday of each month. No one will be turned away because of an inability to pay.

"This is a great program," said Marie Gaytan of Mundelein. I was able to get my child immunized right away."

The Lake County Health Dept. received state funds to help defray the cost of the immunization clinics. In addition to Hepatitis B, the clinic offers immunizations for oral polio, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (DTP/DTAP), haemophilus influenza type B (Hib), and measles, mumps, rubella (MMR). The immunizations are all given by registered nurses.

Lake Forest Hospital has been holding its immunization clinic since last August as part of the Lake County Community Health Partnership which provides children's immunization clinics at 11 different Lake County locations.

The Partnership was formed in October 1994 to develop a collaborative network of health care and community service providers dedicated to working collectively to measure and improve the health status of the residents of Lake County. The immunization clinic is the first of many more health initiatives to come from the Partnership.

Parents are asked to bring their child's previous immunization record to the clinic at the time of immunization. No appointment is necessary.

For more information, call Lake Forest Hospital's Educational Resources department at 234-6112.

Children should learn healthy competition

Dear Dr. Singer,

I know it is close to the end of the school year, but we have been facing a problem that has been growing throughout the year and wanted to see what your opinion is on it. Our daughter is in junior high and has never really been very athletic. We have found her to be more and more phobic about going to school based on having to attend gym class. She cries hysterically and has refused to go to school. She seems to have two concerns. First, she is in a coed class and the boys tend to make fun of her. She has to wear a gym uniform and she is little overweight. You can guess that the two of those things don't go well together.

Second, she is terrified of certain games they play, namely dodgeball. We have tried to explain to her that gym is just like any other class and needs to be attended, but we also feel that these two things (boys and girls together and dodgeball) are very unnecessary. In this class, to the present and future well being of the kids. We always believed that gym should be more about teaching fitness and learning to take care of your body, not about fear of physical harm and criticism. What do you think about this?

Signed, Mother of Daughter Dodging Dodgeball.

Dear Dodge,

At the risk of every gym teacher in the world having a problem with my opinion, I have to be very honest here. Before I share, I want to say two things. First, not all gym classes and schools are the same with regard to these issues, so don't group. Second, I am focusing only on dodgeball and the other issues you mentioned. There are many positive things that happen in many gym classes. All are different.

I also have very scary memories of dodgeball. In those days it was called "Bombardment." It was looked at as a "rite of passage." I think it still is in many schools. In my junior high, we played that game with a very hard, large, rubber ball that had a pattern on it. When someone would throw it at you, as hard as they could (which they often did,) you would have a mark on your body with that pattern burned into it for hours. I never could quite understand what the learning experience was there. At that time, Title IX had just passed as well, which, according to what I was told, not only allowed coed gym, but required it. I understood that this was supposed to be a coup for the feminists, but couldn't quite understand the advantage or positive behind it. Especially after ending up with two, boy-induced, broken appendages.

PARENT'S PLACE

For those of you who are unfamiliar with dodgeball or bombardment, I will explain it according to my experience with it in junior high and also what I have heard from many kids today.

There would be two teams on two sides of the gym spread out against the walls. Each team would throw balls at the other side to try and hit kids on the other team. The object seemed to be to dodge the ball so you could stay in. If you got hit, you were supposed to sit out. What I never could understand, back in those days, was the fact that even after getting hit (which many kids would try to do to get out,) the teacher would make us stay to get hit again. What was up with that?

These days, I understand from some kids, that some schools have gotten a bit more compassionate and have started using nerf (sponge)-like balls instead of the heavy, rubber, bomb-type balls. I applaud them, although, I still don't understand what significant thing this teaches kids. I was always under the impression that school was training for future life. I don't think we are trying to train our kids to go after other people or dodge people, are we? We're also not training them to throw things at other people on purpose, right?

To understand the fear, let's take a close look at that time in life, gym class in general, and what many kids really go through. During pre-adolescence, kids are sensitive about many things. One thing is their bodies. Another is the opposite sex. Another is how well they do at things. All of these things are naturally on parade in gym class. Gym uniforms, coed gym and competition. Who of us can't remember being the last one picked on the team, because you were the only one left. Who of us hasn't gotten made fun of because something on our body wasn't quite in line with someone else's opinion. Don't get me wrong here, I believe that competition is healthy and does train us for future life experiences. It also helps us to try harder, so it's not a negative thing, however, if you look closely at what goes on in many junior high gym classes and talk to the kids in those classes, you find it is rarely healthy competition. It is more likely, kids who are more athletically inclined calling the shots and kids who are not athletically inclined feeling like they are attending a daily firing squad. Not only have I experienced it myself, but have talked to hundreds of kids who have experienced the same thing. I guess one positive of this might be in the fact that we do need to become strong in the face of things that "scare the pants off of us!" That is a big part of future life. We do need to grow calluses on the baby-skin so we can survive later on. I'm not sure that setting this up in a contrived way really hits the mark, though.

In saying these things, I am not telling parents or kids to not attend gym class, because it is a requirement and like any other requirement in school, needs to be followed. I am writing this more for parents and school personnel to begin to maybe re-think what really teaches good things in gym class and how to determine appropriate curriculum. Fitness, exercise, taking care of one's body, healthy competition, in which, people are playing sports that don't use people as targets. To me, this is what gym class is about.

If you are concerned about this I would encourage you first to make sure that you have all the details from your child about what is scary or upsetting. If your child is truly experiencing the phobic reaction you are describing and this reaction is truly coming from fear of dodgeball and other emotional issues around gym class, and you would like to try to have these things changed, the most appropriate route, would be to sit down with the appropriate school personnel (principal, gym teacher, etc.) and talk about what curriculum changes might be able to occur. Try and be flexible, as flexibility tends to promote more positive changes than rigidity does. There may not be any changes that can be made, but then again, there may. Be careful, though. I have also seen kids who have said what they needed to, to get out of certain requirements.

If your child wants out of gym and sees this as the way to get there and you go to lengths to help her get there, you may successfully help her to learn to be an expert manipulator. This is why it is so important for you to ask the right questions first. You don't want to help her learn to get along in life by manipulating or complaining. At the same time, if it is seriously, emotionally affecting her, you will want to help her get through it. You may want to handle your investigation of this with a professional therapist. This way, all the right questions can get asked and you may get a more thorough look at the issue and whether it's real or not. Counseling might also help her to deal with this problem.

My goal is not to tell schools or gym teachers how to operate, however, it seems logical to me that if healthy competition is the goal, then kids cutting on each other should have serious consequences and curriculum should be set up so all kids can learn good sportsmanship and healthy competition. Again, remember that not all schools and gym classes are the same. Don't group them into one lump or one mentality. Each case needs to be looked at individually and logically.

Rose Sajuan's grandkids helped her overcome cancer.

When Rose Sajuan of Waukegan, Ill., found out she had breast cancer in 1996, she knew right away she was going to fight and win, because she had to be here for her grandchildren.

"My family is the most important part of my life, and not being here for them just wasn't in my plans," Rose says.

Rose's family doctor referred her to the Cancer Treatment Centers of America program at Midwestern Regional Medical Center.

"I was very impressed with how open the doctors were. I wanted to be involved in choosing the right treatment for me, and they welcomed that. I especially appreciated having support groups and prayer meetings. That helped me keep a positive attitude, and kept me focused on why I wanted to get well — so I could be here for my family."

The cancer program at Midwestern combines advanced medical treatment with diet planning, vitamin and mineral supplementation, support groups, prayer, and lots of tender loving care.

Find out how we make a difference. Please call Cancer Treatment Centers of America today at 800-940-2822 for more information or to schedule an appointment for a consultation.

CRITIC'S CHOICE

'The Cemetery Club' no grave comedy

Reviewing a story about three Jewish widows who meet each month for tea and then go visit the grave sites of their "late" husbands didn't exactly make me excited about my work assignment. But Antioch's PM&L's production of "The Cemetery Club," had me and the audience in constant laughter! How can three women sitting around talking about their dead husbands be so funny? Go and see "The Cemetery Club," directed by Peter Pontozzi, for yourself!

The plot is geared towards an older audience, I believe the younger generation just wouldn't appreciate the wonderful "one-liner" jokes, or have been through enough experiences in life to see all the humor, sadness and what true friendship means in this story.

Ida, Lucille and Doris are three true life-long friends who expected to enter their golden years of life with their husbands by their side. Now with each husband gone they rely on each other for companionship.

Ida, played regally and at times, naively by Mickey Eckmann Mandel is faced with the struggle to choose between continuing to mourn for her husband or, to move on in life and begin dating and discovering a new partner.

The brusque and tough Lucille, played by Dianne Hosken, is hysterically funny as she coaches Ida to let the past go and start "playing the field" to find a new man to share her life. But, the shy and meek, Doris, played by Anne Marie Cina, and who has the best one-liners of the show, fears their friendship will be broken apart and that all three should stay true to their dead husbands.

The laughs continue as Sam, played by Gerry Mandel is the only "live" male in the cast and has his hands full when he is accused of being the town's playboy. But, he carries his role off wonderfully as a sweet, cuddly teddy bear! Even when the vivacious and wild Mildred, played by Maureen Kuehne, tries to sway him away from Ida!

The laughs, tears, and great dialogue has the audience in a continuous roar of laughter and, at times tears.

Life may be hard enough for anyone, but when you have good friends it is a lot easier to get through.

"The Cemetery Club" proves too, that making a commitment in a relationship, no matter what your age, is a hard decision, and one that only you can make.

Theatre goes will leave the show with a good feeling for life and a happiness that you are glad you too had a friend to view this play along with you!

Remaining show dates are: June 6, 7, 13 and 14 at 8:30 p.m. and June 8, and 15 at 2:30 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling 395-3055.—

Several ways to use annuals as a colorful palette

Looks like it will be another late gardening year, due to our unusual weather. Now, with the weather finally cooperating, there was much to do over the past weekend. I had many flowers to plant: My new roses are off to a slow start. Many annuals went in, petunias, marigolds, verbenas, sweet alyssum and geraniums.

One sure thing, there's a place in every garden for color and annuals certainly can do the job. Considering all types of flowers, annuals take off rather quickly and continue to bloom for months.

Most of us are aware that annual flowers are good for one season only. Seeds generally are sown in the spring, plants bloom all summer, then are killed by frost. There are hardy annuals; those can withstand light frosts. They can be sown in very early spring. Examples of these are sweet alyssum, calendula, pinks, phlox and sweet pea. Half hardy annuals germinate best when the soil stays warm. They take longer to flower. It is recommended that they be started indoors, or in a cold frame. These are Chippa asters, browallia, lobelia, and scabiosa. Tender annuals are not at all frost resistant. They will not develop when weather is cold. Examples are salvia and zinnia.

These days you can buy annuals in any color scheme; popular is blue salvia and yellow petunias! I like to do mass plantings of impatiens of the same color group, and start from the palest hue to the deepest. Cosmos have delicate foliage and are easily grown from seed. They range in color from pale pink to dark maroon. I love giant snapdragons for their form and color. Pinks add vibrant color and smell lovely, with a spicy scent.

Annuals are very diverse as they can fill any role in the garden. You can use them to cover gardening mistakes as they grow fast. Plant borders rather heavily—they look great en masse! Use them to create unusual designs in your landscape. An old wagon, milk container, bucket, sprinkling can may be planted with annuals for a stunning effort.

Select colors you love and then add complementary colors to blend with or contrast with them. Use one color scheme along the length of a flower border that is seen at one time. When you turn a corner, or move to another part of the garden, color schemes can be switched.

My sister plants annuals in shades of purple and rose around her cedar mailbox. It looks stunning from the road. Passersby often comment on her arrangement. She has mammoth sweet pea, and morning glory vine trellising up the mailbox post, and blue salvia and petunias are planted at the base.

Use your imagination with annuals; I'm sure you will be happy with your results. What an easy and quick way to have a lovely flower garden!

Tails wagging at specialty dog show

The Western Boston Terrier Club, Inc. will hold their 95th Annual Specialty Show from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, June 14, at the Holiday Inn, 1000 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Judging begins at 11 a.m. Puppy classes are six months to 12 months; adults classes are Novice, Bred by Exhibitor, American Bred, and Open.

There will be prizes and ribbons in all classes, culminating in Best in Show. The judge for regular and non-regular classes is Bob Candland of Lake Elsinore, Calif. The Sweepstakes judge is Imogene Brown of Granger, Ind.

The 95th Annual Specialty Show will be dedicated to long-time club member Paul Schwartz, who passed away in April at the age of 99.

The indoor unbenched show is held yearly and draws spectators and participants from across the country. A special feature following the Sweepstakes Competition will be the Parade of Champions, for which only Boston Terrier AKC Champions of Record are eligible.

The Western Boston Terrier Club, Inc., the oldest Boston Terrier club in the Midwest and the second oldest in the country, was founded in 1898 and has members throughout the United States. For more information, call JoAnne Rosenfeld at (630)355-5444.

TRUST: Horsewoman forms bond with blind Appaloosa horse thinks of him as her second horse. Her first horse is Teo, a Quarter-horse gelding she's owned since she was 9.

She said working with a blind horse is certainly a new challenge for her.

"You have to pay a lot more attention. When you've been riding a long time, there are certain things you expect a horse to do. But with a blind horse, you can't expect anything," said Ruth. "When I first started working with him, it was hard for him to walk straight, he tended to drift off."

Ruth controls Mayday through pressure from her legs and on the halter. She doesn't use many voice commands, but when they are approaching an obstacle, she says "step" to warn him, along with pressure on the halter.

Through Natural Horsemanship, the object is to allow the horse the option of either doing what you are asking, or doing it his way, which would be the more difficult method.

"Sometimes I allow him the experience of not listening, but not to the extent that he would get hurt. If he ever did get hurt, he might lose trust in me," said Ruth.

Ruth plans to take her passion for horses to a career in horse massage. Her mother, also Ruth Warren, is a massage therapist. Her dad, Michael Warren, is a Realtor at ReMax Advantage, in Antioch, where Ruth has been working as his assistant.

The Antioch High School graduate has been attending the College of Lake County, but hopes to start massage school this year.

Ruth Warren said boarders at DreaMMacres ranch have told her Mayday, a blind Appaloosa gelding, seems much happier since she's been working with him. Ruth rides Mayday nearly every day.—Photo by Claudia M. Lenart

Horseback riding — the natural way

DreaMMacres Ranch and Equestrian Center, off Wilmot Road in Spring Grove, is the largest Natural Horsemanship center in the Midwest.

In Natural Horsemanship, a rider learns how to truly communicate with a horse by learning about prey animal psychology and the ways in which other horses communicate with each other. It is against any techniques or equipment that physically force a horse into submission.

"You're giving the horse a choice between doing what you're asking or making what he wants to do difficult. You're offering him a better deal," said Sharon Boatwright, who runs DreaMMacres with her husband, Randy.

DreaMMacres offers a wide variety of options for equestrians, including youth riding lessons, training, boarding and monthly educational clinics. The Boatwrights bring in top trainers from across the country for their monthly workshops.

Youth riding lessons start as early as 3 or 4 years old. Children start out their lessons with ground safety and learning how to communicate with the horse.

The ranch offers a horse leasing program where riders can half lease a horse for $165 a month and ride three days a week. A full lease costs $265 a month. Both programs offer free lessons.

"When I was a kid I would have done anything for an opportunity to have a horse to ride. That's why I decided to provide the opportunity to kids on a month-to-month basis," said Sharon.

DreaMMacres has 78 stalls. It is located next to Chain O'Lakes State Park for easy access to trails and also has indoor and outdoor riding arenas. For more information, call (815) 675-1030. —By Claudia M. Lenart

Flight For Life celebrates 10 years

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Flight For Life Northern Illinois helicopter program at the Northern Illinois Medical Center in McHenry. Since its inception in 1987, the Northern Illinois helicopter service has flown nearly 3,000 patient flights.

People whose lives have been touched by FFL are invited to help celebrate 10 years of service at a patient/crew reunion. Former patients will have the opportunity to meet the flight teams who cared for them during transport. The reunion will be held on June 21 at the Northern Illinois Medical Center in McHenry.

If you or a family member were transported by Flight For Life and would like to be part of this reunion, send a postcard with your name and address by June 9 to:

Flight for Life, Attn. 10 Year Patient Reunion, 1000 North 92nd St., Suite 1302, Milwaukee, WI 53226 or call, (414)778-4573.

The helicopter, a Bell 222U, is staffed by flight nurses from the Emergency Dept. at the Northern Ill. Medical Center and flight paramedics from fire departments throughout northern Illinois.

HOROSCOPE

Aries — March 21/April 20

While your need to voice your opinions can get you in trouble, it won't this week when it comes to your career. Superiors at work are interested in hearing what you have to say. You even may increase your status. That special someone wants to step up your relationship. Consider your true feelings before agreeing.

Taurus — April 21/May 21

Don't be stubborn about accepting help from co-workers. It's a busy week, and you are overloaded with assignments. Getting some help is the only way you'll get things done. As for your family life, you won't feel threatened. Everyone is there to support you, not to aggravate you. Gemini plays a role.

Gemini — May 22/June 21

You need to think fast on your feet early in the week as problems arise at work. Your ideas can remedy the situation and make you the star of the office. You'll be in the spotlight when it comes to romance too. That special someone you've been interested in finally notices you. Make your move.

Cancer — June 22/July 22

A co-worker's mistake puts you in a bad mood, because you're the person who has to repair the damage. Stay calm, instead of getting angry and upset. Your decorum will serve you much better than self-pity. A loved one reveals a secret to you. While it shocks you, you must be supportive and help him or her out.

Leo — July 23/August 23

Your arrogant nature takes control of you at work early in the week. You deserve the praise you get from superiors, but you shouldn't get cocky. This only makes you look bad. A close friend tells you that he or she has romantic feelings for you. Consider your true feelings before rejecting him or her.

Virgo — Aug 24/Sept 22

You have nothing to worry about this week. Everything at work goes smoothly, and you make great progress on a project.

As for loved ones, everyone is supportive and concerned about your needs. Your love life is even doing well. That special someone responds to your advances.

Libra — Sept 23/Oct 23

You need to seek balance this week. From your career to your family, everything seems to be overwhelming you. Take some time for yourself to set your priorities straight. You can clear your mind and create a "plan of attack." Remember to think of your needs; you have to look out for No. 1.

Scorpio — Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let your ego get the best of you this week. Even though you're making great strides at work, you have to remember that you're still the employee — not the employer. A close friend introduces you to an intriguing person. Don't be afraid to get to know him or her better.

Sagittarius — Nov 23/Dec 21

Hold your temper in check this week — even when your plans seem to backfire. You're an intelligent person who can deal with these problems without blaming others. Just remain calm and rational. A loved one turns to you in a time of need, because you've always been willing to listen. Don't disappoint him or her.

Capricorn — Dec 22/Jan 20

Your gentle nature serves you well at work this week. When everyone seems to be stabbing each other in the back, your steadiness gets the office back to normal. Superiors appreciate your help. A romantic relationship ends, but don't get discouraged. He or she wasn't right for you.

Aquarius — Jan 21/Feb 18

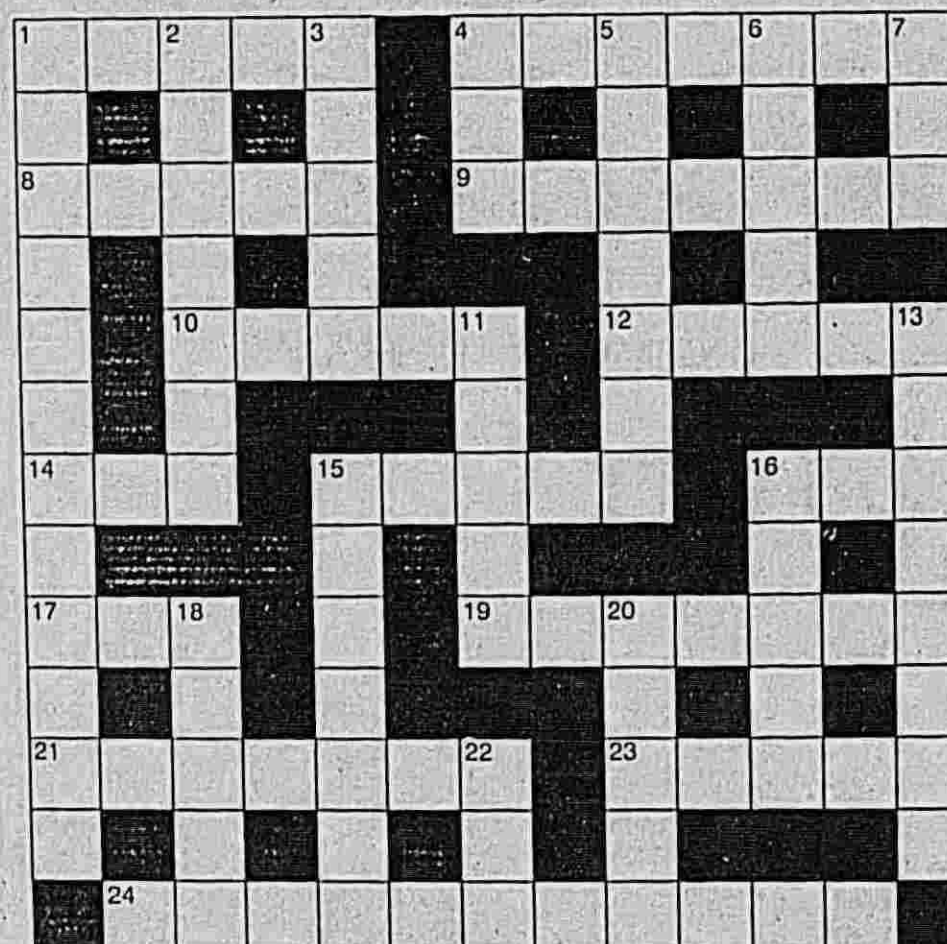

It is smooth sailing at work this week. You finish a difficult project and help a manager organize a new program. Your efforts will not be forgotten. However, when it comes to romance, you hit some rough seas. Those few dateless nights turn into what seems like a long dry spell. Don't get discouraged.

Pisces — Feb 19/March 20

You feel like you're being held back at work this week. Perhaps it's time for you to move on.

However, before you burn any bridges with co-workers, make sure you've crossed to the other side. That special someone calls you for a date. Say yes.

Change it back

I'm calling to say that I agree with "Change the system." It's not only Antioch Township who has the papers all over the driveway, it's also in Mundelein. The newspaper is supposed to be delivered on the porch, but they can't seem to get it right. I preferred the mail delivery.

Mundelein

Enforce animal laws

We like to keep our yard looking nice and it improves the value of our home and neighborhood. I think the loose dog problem is increasing. Someone's dog just relieved itself on one of my evergreens. It's brown on one side. It's laid in my flower bed and killed two plants, etc. A $10 fine is not enough. The village isn't interesting in enforcing these laws. The people in Grayslake have a lot of dogs and a lot of nerve.

Schedule times

I'm calling about the article quoting farmer Keith Grinnell as saying "Be patient and remember where the grocery chain starts. Think about the corn sweetener and the soda pop you're drinking and the ethanol in your tank." Although I certainly appreciate the farming industry, I don't credit it as being the single most important thing in the United States. As a nurse, I wonder how we would feel if a loved one arrived via ambulance and was told that the doctor would be delayed by traveling farm implements. I would strongly endorse a time frame law stating that farm implements can travel our busy roads at certain designated times during the day. This would allow drivers to plan ahead and leave more traveling times to these hours. Some destinations are too important to be patient for the beginning of the grocery chain.

Spring Grove

Thanks for support

A huge thank you to Officer Rita Stang of the Grayslake Police Department for bringing the DARE program to St. Gilbert School. She did a fantastic job. Thanks also to the Grayslake Police Department for your input and help. You're all wonderful role models for the younger generation.

Grayslake

Think of seniors, too

I'm calling in regard to the message of "Thanks, thanks, thanks" to all the people who donated huggable bears to give to children transported by police. I think it would be great if this would be done in all of our communities. Not just for kids, but for seniors who are frightened and scared and don't have anyone.

Mundelein

Clueless

In response to "Not Air Force Business," who said it was ridiculous for Kelly Flinn to be discharged from the Air Force, you obviously have no idea what a military career involves. When you take the oath, you agree to adhere to a higher standard of conduct as spelled out in the Uniform Code of Military Justice. While investigators don't seek out adultery cases, once a complaint is filed, they must investigate. She compounded her problems by making false official statements and disobeying a direct order. As an officer, I do not want to see officers of either gender in critical positions who can't maintain the high standards required. Her discharge was an appropriate response to her behavior, which was an embarrassment to all of us who have ever served.

Great job, keep it up

This is in response to "Never again." It's a sad day in Lake County when you're doing the right thing to report a drunk driver and you're made out to be the bad guy. You did a great thing, so don't say never again and stop becoming involved. Maybe we can stop these irresponsible, selfish people who continue to drink and drive. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for what you did.

Keep high standards

I would suggest that Lipservice may have committed a disservice to readers of the May 29, 1997 issue by highlighting a call that states it was ridiculous to want to discharge a lady because she's committed adultery and lied. The facts do not support such a conclusion.

Kelly Flinn lied to a superior officer by denying falsely that she was having an adulterous affair with the husband of an Air Force enlisted person. She disobeyed a direct order to stop the affair and lied when she said that the affair had stopped. In civilian life, none of this would be very serious. However, in military life it is serious.

As a military officer, she took an oath to abide by and obey the regulations of the Air Force. She's very lucky she's not going to jail. Do we really want a pilot of a B-52 bomber capable of carrying nuclear weapons to be unable to conform to the rules and regulations of the military service she's chosen?

Funny how publicity and hype tend to alter the public perception of facts, particularly when it comes to the difference between military and civilian life.

Wauconda

Scofflaw president?

I live in the West Ridge subdivision in Island Lake and lately I've noticed a lot of construction debris to the curb and a lot of dry-wall delivery to the home of the Association president. There's been no display of a building permit in his home. I hope the president of the Association is not a scofflaw.

Thanks, Mike

My husband and I would like to spend a special thank you to Mike Gende at Fox Lake Ford. As business owners ourselves, we know what lengths we go to for our customers. Mike went beyond that and was helpful, courteous, honest and trustworthy. Everything he said he would do was done. We're very satisfied and have the car we wanted.

Let's wake up

I'd like to say something about Wauconda. They're always going around raising taxes. They've been talking for 30 years about the swimming pool and haven't seen anything yet. Where's the money going? My mother-in-law is 74 years old and she has to go out and work because her taxes were raised $1,100. People need to stand up for their rights and what they believe in and attend town meetings.

Not fair

My neighbor never recycles her cardboard. She never cuts them down. Why should the rest of us participate in recycling when our neighbors don't have to? I think this is ridiculous and they should have to pay a fine.

Revise theater costs

I have a comment about the price to see a movie. They charge $7.50 for adults and children over 11 years old. I think this is unfair because children are paying adult prices and they can't even see adult movies. I think they should come up with a student rate.

Lake Zurich

Not helping

I don't think the bus strike is helping us kids, we've gotten used to our bus drivers. I don't like the bus companies changing.

Residential landscapes are a series of outdoor rooms

As a homeowner, moving into a new home or adding on to an existing home, is thought out, designed and then implemented by builders and other trades. Why not do this with your landscape? Just throwing in a tree in the front and some bushes around the foundation of your home is not landscape. It's just a cosmetic touch-up and at times ends up costing more because time was not spent in think through the overall concepts of what a landscape will bring to your site.

We look at residential landscapes as a series of outdoor rooms which possess functions similar to those inside your home. Plants are looked upon as you may look at materials to finish your walls, floors, and ceilings of the rooms in your home.

I like to break down a residential setting into sections. The entry-way—list any current problems—are they visual or functional? We find in the newer homes many of the side-walks leading to the front door are too small and barely functional. How can this be minimized or even eliminated? What type of material can be used in its place? Should we pull off the architecture of our home? Should we use brick or bluestone or exposed aggregate for a new walkway? How large should the new walkway be? Should it be freeform or have angles to its shape? This seems like a lot of questions to ask, however, by thinking through this, a great landscape can be achieved instead of just another landscape that looks as if it was done on one weekend because there was some time and you like that one red bush you saw the other day.

Landscape, like the rooms in your home, all serve a function and are all connected. Most of the activity in one's home may be in the family room or recreation room and therefore has the proper furniture, pool table, TV, computer or whatever activity the family enjoys in this particular room.

Your backyard of your site generally has the most activity, so list your favorite activities. Examples: If you like to play volleyball or frisbee, then the middle of your yard needs to be clear and plantings along the sides of your property will better serve your site. If you are an avid gardener and like to relax on the patio when finished in the garden; surround yourself with gardens and have the patio in the middle of your gardens.

Try to list all the positive elements and qualities of each area of your site as well as the negatives. Remember, good landscaping should eliminate any negatives. Believe it or not, function is first in landscaping, and eliminate many problems.

Try to visualize your site in the future. Do you want a formal or informal look? Do you want an open prairie feel or wooded look? What kind of hardscape materials do you want on your site? How will fences, walls, and brick or slate stone pavements effect your landscape?

Another fun thing I like to do is list my favorite plants to use on one's site and use them whenever possible. If you don't know many plants, just list colors and textures or show pictures of desired effect.

Finally put together a budget you'd be willing to spend to achieve your landscape over the next three to four years.

All your ideas may then be put together in a landscape concept that will serve you and your loved ones for years. If you cannot come up with many ideas, remember the painter and wallpaper trades that did a great job in your home? Well, there are some very good landscape architects and contractors that will help you decorate your outdoor room.

Simplicity Mfg. celebrates 75th Anniversary

Simplicity Manufacturing, Inc. was founded in 1922 by William J. Niederkorn in Port Washington, Wis., a small, family-oriented community along the shores of Lake Michigan.

The first product manufactured by Simplicity Mfg., Inc. was a portable boring and grinding machine for reconditioning automobile engines. The demand for this product disappeared in 1936, when Detroit started rebuilding engines to sell directly to car and truck owners.

In 1937, Simplicity entered the outdoor power equipment industry by building two-wheel walking tractors for Montgomery Ward and company. These became so popular that an entire line of lawn and garden equipment was soon designed by Simplicity.

The company has been making ride-on tractors since 1939 and snowthrowers since 1961. Walk behind tillers were first produced in 1955.

Simplicity has history in the commercial tractor business since 1971 that was reemphasized in 1989 when the company acquired the Middlesworth Engineering Company. The commercial riding mowers featured patented hydro steer design and exclusive steering wheel control for a zero turning radius.

In the 1990s, when legislation banned yard waste from landfills, it became increasingly difficult for homeowners to dispose of yard debris. Simplicity responded with equipment that attached to its existing tractor lines to mulch and shred grass clippings and leaves. In 1992, through the acquisition of Tornado Products Co., Simplicity entered the chipper shredder market and later expanded the line to include walk-behind chipper vacuums.

Riding lawn and garden tractors, where Simplicity has a leadership position, account for the majority of company sales. Riding equipment applications include mowing, grass collection, mulching, hauling, snow removal, plowing, cultivating, tilling, front-end loading and dozing. Several chipper vacuum, chipper/shredder, snowthrower, and rear tiller models complete a broad product line.

Simplicity Mfg., Inc. is a company that holds more than 70 patents for innovative design features. Products are developed with state-of-the-art techniques through its Computer Aided Design/Computer Aided Mfg. System (CAD/CAM). Engineering staffs utilize an in-house model shop with prototype capabilities. A 40-acre proving site facilitates testing and development of new products. New designs are subjected to extreme conditions by test equipment which simulates years of consumer use prior to the product going to market.

More than 1,300 independent dealers form the nucleus of the Simplicity distribution organization. The greatest penetration is found in the East and Midwest, with expansion occurring in the West and Southeast. Simplicity products are exported to 22 countries, including Europe, Canada, Australia, Brazil, New Zealand and parts of Asia and the Middle East.

School funding reform goes down drain

GOP: County could have seen $300 million under House Republican plan

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

Students and taxpayers were the clear losers in last week's political showdown between Governor Jim Edgar and the legislature, over his plan to overhaul school funding, a campaign platform last fall.

'The question you have to ask yourself over and over is: If education funding is the top priority, why wouldn't the state use the additional $1 billion in revenue coming in this year to fund it, rather than ask citizens for a tax increase.'

State Rep. Robert Churchill
(R-Lake Villa)

There is one bright spot, however, the state budget for education will see an increase of $330 million for fiscal year 1998.

Lake County's burgeoning growth made school funding reform the top priority for county legislatures who in the House, which was the only branch to vote on the plan, split along party lines with only state Rep. Lauren Beth Gash (D-Deerfield) voting for Edgar's plan. It passed the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives by a vote of 62-56 with seven Republicans voting for the plan.

The House Republicans and Senate Republicans, each unhappy with Edgar's plan, proposed plans of their own. They were killed in each other's respective revenue committees.

State Rep. Robert Churchill (R-Lake Villa) says the difference between the Governor's plan and the House Republican plan, which he supported, was no personal income tax increase and major increases in construction money. Under the House Republican plan, school districts would have received matching funds for construction projects based on average daily attendance. The funds could have been used for new construction or renovations.

"Each side wanted education reform, but suburban Republicans did not want to vote for a bad plan, so we

Students at Pleviak School in Lake Villa file out following the end of the school day. Under a proposed school funding plan by the Illinois House Republicans, Lake County schools and taxpayers would have received $300 million in school aid and property tax relief. Republicans hope to revise the plan in the fall.

State of Illinois FY 1998 Requested Appropriations put forth a viable plan which would have had a positive impact on all school districts," Churchill said. "We would not consider a plan which included a tax hike for citizens."

Under the House Republican plan, Lake County schools and taxpayers would have been $300 million in the black as opposed to a net loss of $1.5 million under the Edgar plan. The net loss would have come from the amount of property tax relief seen by Lake County residents as opposed to the increase in income tax. Additionally, some wealthier school districts would have actually lost state aid under the Edgar plan.

The cornerstone of the House Republican plan was the use of additional state revenue to fund schools as opposed to a personal income tax increase. Both plans provided real property tax relief for citizens.

"The question you have to ask yourself over and over is: If education funding is the top priority, why wouldn't the state use the additional $1 billion in revenue coming in this year to fund it, rather than ask citizens for a tax increase," Churchill said.

The increased revenue of $1 bil-

Robbery suspects use movie as inspiration

By ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Three suspects believed to be inspired by the movie "Natural Born Killers," are facing armed robbery and burglary counts.

One of the suspects, Jeffrey Lalond, 27, 38435 Shag Bark Lane, Wadsworth allegedly told police he wanted to blow up the Lindenhurst Police Station.

"He was arrested there once and has a grudge against them," said Waukegan Capt. William Biang, head of the Lake County Repeat Offender Strike Force.

Biang said the three suspects had watched the movie every day for three weeks, and began plotting burglaries. The movie is based on characters who go on a mass robbery and killing spree.

Robert Brasseaux, 26, 2541 Galilee, Zion, and Christine Beshel, 24, same address, both were charged with armed robbery of the Fashionation store, 2617 Grand Avenue, Waukegan on May 18. Beshel, was the assistant manager there.

Brasseaux and Lalond are also charged with a burglary of the Cleveland Corporation in Zion. Beshel and Lalond have the added charge of armed robbery of the Cornerstone Motel, 1427 Sheridan Road, Winthrop Harbor.

Lalond was arrested on a warrant May 30.

All three suspects remain in Lake County Jail. Brasseaux is facing a $1 million bond. He was on parole for armed robbery, according to Biang.

Lalond has a $300,000 bond and Beshel has a $100,000 bond.

Biang added police are working with the Lake County State's Attorney's office to get all three suspects indicted by the end of this week.

Biang said the investigation is ongoing and more charges could be added at a later date.

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Golden Arches approved

Lake Villa—Trustees approved allowing the first ever fast food chain to build in the village by granting McDonald's eight variances.

The fast food giant won landscape, parking and off-site sign variances needed to permit the company to construct a 3,400 square foot restaurant on a 1-acre parcel.

The only concern expressed by trustees was the drive-thru window. Board members requested a face-to-face window to limit the noise from the loudspeakers.

The vote was 5-1 in favor of the plan. Only Trustee David Dykstra voted against the plan citing his desire for more landscaping fronting Route 83.

District getting state help

Round Lake—Round Lake Unit Schools will be getting more state money this year.

Sen. Bill Peterson (R-Prairie View) and State Rep. Mark Beaubien (R-Barrington), both of whom represent the Round Lake area in the legislature, helped the district receive a $500,000 life safety grant.

Additionally, the district will receive a small share of a $330 million increase in state funding this year.

Hat Trick for Antioch

Antioch—Downtown Antioch scored the final shot in its improvement efforts last week with receipt of a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers wetland permit. The Corps wetland permit allows Antioch to proceed with its share of downtown area development.

The 4.5 acre wetlands restoration project will ultimately create a skating, picnic, and education area along Sequoia Creek.

The Corps wetland permit allows Antioch to proceed with its contribution towards downtown area development. The Sequoia Creek area project includes the restoration of wetlands, the construction of a bandshell with festival picnicking area, and creation of a skating pond with a warming shelter.

The second part of the project is the refurbishment of the open area east of the downtown business district. This will include: burying utility cables, constructing a new road, paving behind east side buildings, screening trash collection areas, creating new public parking, and color-coordinating the appearance of the backs of all buildings.

The first part of the project, new commercial development, is already well on its way to completion. It is the construction of the Centegra Health System Medical Office Building.

St. Pat's celebrates groundbreaking

Wadsworth—St. Patrick's School broke ground for its preschool/multipurpose room/classroom addition Sunday, May 31. The $1.2 million structure is expected to be finished by late November or December. Funding for the addition is coming from donations.

Once the construction is complete the kindergarten room will be moved into the new addition and the preschool will open in the fall.

The existing kindergarten room will be converted to a larger library with 1,500 square feet of space.

The addition will make space available in the existing areas for a science lab and the school will have the capacity to fulfill its goal of two classrooms per grade level.

Grayslake author in People

Grayslake—Grayslake is receiving national exposure in the May 19 issue of People Magazine where author Nan McCarthy is featured in the "Bytes" section.

McCarthy is the author of two romance novels "Chat" and "Connect" and is working on the third in the series titled "Crash." The novels center around a couple, Max and Beverly, who's romance is played out entirely in e-mail.

McCarthy sells the books through her web site at www.rainwater.com, and locally they are sold through the Barnes and Noble bookstore in Vernon Hills. She has previously been featured in Glamour magazine, the Wall Street Journal and Publishers Weekly.

Auto Nation makes pitch for site

Gurnee—Attempting to do its best to sway Gurnee trustees, if not public opinion its way, USA Auto Nation put its best foot forward with several alterations to a site plan for Dille's Road and Rte. 132.

Whether or not that effort was successful will not be known until June 16, when trustees are expected to vote on the planned unit development for the giant used car lot site.

David Reifman, attorney for Auto Nation, contended the improved site plan is the best use for the portion of the 60-acre site.

Improvements include heavy landscaping and more berming to shield the residential neighbors. Auto Nation's site is 800 feet away from the closest home.

Auto Nation pledges to contribute to local traffic improvements such as an added left turn lane.

The firm could bring 125 jobs to the Gurnee location.

Fishing derby seeks entrants

Wauconda—Time still remains to enter the Third Annual Wauconda Lions Club Fishing Tournament on Bangs Lake to be held Saturday, June 7, from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Lindy's Landing, Park and Main streets.

The tournament is open to everyone, with a fee of $15 per contestant required, and two registered and paid contestants per boat, which must be in the water at Lindy's Landing by 5:30 a.m. June 7 for inspection. The deadline to enter is 6 p.m. Friday, June 6, at Lindy's Landing, 526-9789.

All fish caught during the event must be released back into Bangs Lake, and all boats must have required safety equipment on board, as stipulated by the Wauconda Board of Trustees. The village's boat sticker fee will be waived for all tournament participants. Boat rentals are available for $10 in advance. Proceeds will be donated to Wauconda for the fish restocking program.

Teacher fined $500 for crime

Lake Zurich—Former Lake Zurich High School teacher Douglas Petrovitch escaped jail time for coercing a student to sell him discounted merchandise for a higher grade when he was sentenced to two years conditional discharge and fined $500.

Petrovitch, 28, was told by Cook County Circuit Judge Pamela Karahalios he would be resentenced and possibly face jail time if he commits another crime in the next two years.

Petrovitch, who was an economics teacher at the school since 1994, resigned earlier this year. He was said to have purchased $876.84 of merchandise from the Target Store in Palatine for $119.73 on Dec. 18, 1996, according to Assistant Cook County States Attorney James Andreau. He stated Petrovitch coerced the student, a 16-year-old girl, with either discounting or voiding items to reduce the total purchase price, authorities said.

Fox Waterway Chairman Dr. William Dam acknowledged that the charge against Gundelach was very serious and that there was "serious consideration, even now" of requesting a letter of resignation should the charge be borne out.

Even if Gundelach is acquitted, his refusal to take a breath test means an automatic 1-year suspension of boating privileges and Dam said this could provide the Agency with "considerable logistical problems" in allowing the field supervisor to keep his job.

MainStreet 'Great American Street'

Libertyville—Lieutenant Governor Bob Kustra lauded the efforts of MainStreet Libertyville which resulted in the Great American Main Street Award for the organization. Kustra presented the award in a program Monday evening. He said in addition to economic development, MainStreet brings back a sense of community.

"It allows us to recreate a little bit of that sense of community, that everybody who's examined this great country of ours, has claimed that we have lost or are in the process of losing," Kustra said.

Zachory's life so far, however, has not been like that of other kids his age.

For the last three years, Zachory has been fighting Acute Lymphomatic Leukemia (ALL), the most common form of childhood leukemia — and he is winning the fight.

On Saturday, June 7, at Carmel High School in Mundelein, Zachory will lead the first lap of the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life as spokesperson for the event, but more importantly, as a cancer survivor.

Fox Lake—A May 31 boating accident and a subsequent charge of operation of a boat while under the influence may spell the end of Fox Waterway Agency Roy Gundelach's tenure as the agency's field manager.

Petitioners want state to fix road

Grant Township—Dissatisfied with inaction on the part of IDOT in making repairs to Big Hollow Road, Grant Township officials are organizing a petition campaign to accelerate the process.

"We want to put pressure on the state to get action," said Township Supervisor Gordy Kiesgen of speeding the repair of "one of the most dangerous stretches of road" in the area.

The petition campaign, to be undertaken over the next two weeks, is in answer to IDOT's default on a promise to begin repairs last month, delaying repairs indefinitely.

Downtown due for major facelift

Mundelein—With an eye to improving the downtown character and vitality, Mundelein trustees spent two hours Monday evening listening and considering downtown redevelopment proposals.

The Hitchcock Design Group and Design Organization Inc. showed slides and drawings of concepts for streetscapes, facade treatments, and architectural treatments. They also discussed signage, landscaping, downtown open space, and specific land uses on various parcels.

Trustees have made no final decisions regarding any proposals put forth by consultants.

Charter schools need law change

Early going for the Illinois charter school movement has been rough. Backers anticipated opposition from the teachers' unions and other segments of the public school business, but their biggest hurdle has been the closed-mindedness of school board members.

Publically, elected officials where charter districts have been sought profess grave concern about a drain of students and public funding. Underneath, though, school boards see the charter movement in the same light as the entrenched bureaucracies, a competitive threat to the public education monopoly and all its perogatives.

The school board of Woodland Dist. 50 serving students in the area between Grayslake and Gurnee rejected a proposal from the Prairie Commons Charter School project covering 35 students by a 4-2 vote. The two supporting board members, Alan Mann and Mike Mullinix, saw approval of the charter request putting Woodland in the vanguard of communities providing educational alternatives. Betsy Awani, an opponent, viewed a local charter school "costing" Woodland $3 million in 10 years. Margaret Breitzman, a long-time school board member, said charter advocates are playing "politics."

Woodland officials denied a request from Prairie Commons to discuss further details. Prairie Commons leaders intend to take their charter proposal to Fremont Dist. 79 June 12. One of the Prairie Commons leaders said Mann and Mullinix took their supportive positions at "tremendous risk."

Enabling legislation provided for 45 charter schools statewide. Legislators envisioned more than a dozen charter districts being formed in the suburbs, but so far school boards have shot down every effort. School board members in Wheeling couldn't see any difference between a proposed charter school program and the public school curriculum. They must have turned off their hearing aides during a presentation by parents.

Both educators and state legislators who support the charter school concept have suggested that laws be rewritten to reduce or eliminate the influence of local school boards. Charter districts are supported by tax dollars but are free of many state mandates. Major strings imposed by lawmakers cover religion and discrimination.

Fear and opposition of charter schools expressed by school board members is self evident of some of the shortcomings of public education. The charter school concept is alive and well. It won't go away. The law should be changed to give charter districts a chance.

Big tree quest wins rave notice

Trees can take on personalities, moreso than ever now that an annual contest is being held to identify the biggest living specimen in the county. Lake County's biggest oak stands majestically in Sterling Lake Forest Preserve off Russell Rd., Wadsworth, certified as such in the first ever Big Tree contest sponsored by the Lake County Soil and Water Conservation District. The forest preserve oak is big, all right, a rugged burr oak putting forth a girth of 17 feet 9 inches. The oak is considered to be well over 100 years old.

Finding the biggest maple already has been decided upon for the 1998 contest. Winning nominators were presented plaques and a baby oak tree they can plant at home.

Soil and Water District officials were more than pleased with the success of the contest. The favorable publicity was welcomed after the controversial election of new directors resulting from rigging by pro-development forces out to manipulate district business.

VIEWPOINT

'Squeezy' feeling trampling privacy

Loss of privacy may be the single most distasteful part of Lake County growth and development.

Traffic problems associated with a growing population could be a near second. But that "squeezed in" feeling is what bothers so many county residents.

Morrie Bishaf said a nearby grove of mature trees served as a barrier to the outside world and an object of beauty for residents of the Warren Township subdivision of Mill Creek Crossing. Then the bulldozers descended to make way for a project of about two dozen homes.

"Goodbye privacy," exclaimed Bishaf. "The trees will be gone and the wildlife will be gone." Due to a difference in elevation, Bishaf says he'll be staring at the walk-out basement of a three-story house instead of the peaceful stand of mature trees.

Bishaf and his neighbors believe county building aides were misled by the developer who raised a roadway 10 to 12 feet to provide access for a cul de sac. "As far as we're concerned, we'll be facing a bunch of apartment buildings," Bishaf added disgustedly.

that he still brings home the weekly bouquet even though his wife passed away three years ago. "And put the flowers in warm water."

Add LaVergne Newton to the list of retirees who finds happiness socking a little white ball around a field of green. Newton, back from Florida for the summer in her Lake Villa apartment, says the best thing about her newfound pastime is that "you don't have to be good at golf to enjoy the sport." Before deciding to take it easy, Newton was a real estate broker in the Antioch area.

PREFER SPACE

Voters in Bucks County, Pa., a once rural county facing urbanization pressures similar to Lake County, voted support of a $59 million open space plan in a referendum May 20.

The plan, designed to preserve 15,000 acres of farms, woods and fields, carried overwhelmingly in 52 of the county's 54 municipalities. Local funds will generate an additional $56.5 million in matching state and private funds. Critics said the open space measure, which won a 70 percent approval rating, will favor more affluent areas in Central and Upper Bucks, while more blue-collar Lower Bucks municipalities will pay a disproportionate share of the bill.

GET IN SHAPE

Won't hurt a bit to start getting in shape early for a worthwhile event, the American Heart Walk, scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 27. This year American Heart Assn. volunteers are going to focus on getting local businesses to organize employee teams to enter the walk that will take place in the Barrington/Lake Zurich community.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Campaign sources tell woeful tale

Perhaps if we took a good look at the financial reports of some of our members of the County Board and see how their campaign contributions tie closely to their votes we would understand just how Lake County government works and has worked for years.

If we saw exactly where the sheriff's and state's attorney's campaign contributions came from we would better understand their motivation in "evening old political wounds/scores" and in allowing well-known Mafia figures to continue carrying guns, operate massage parlors, nude bars and gambling in the county. Maybe they don't take it "under the table," but sometimes campaign contributions come from very "interesting" sources to say the least.

Sometimes we might have to look at the report with a magnifying glass and put 1 plus 1 together to make 2. Other times 1 plus 1 would add up to 7. It's a filthy corrupt system that we operate under and it takes years of corruption before somebody gets voted out of office the way they operate today.

But a little "examination" by the voters might cause us to vote more County Board members, State Legislators and Congressmen out of office many years before we do now.

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Freshman brings home the goods

Freshman state representative Mark Beaubien (R-Wauconda) completed his first session in the state house by bringing home $750,000 to the district.

The benefactors of his lobbying efforts include Round Lake Schools who will receive an additional $500,000 in state aid for health and life safety improvements and Lake Zurich Rural Fire Protection District which will receive $250,000 in a second grant for construction of a new fire house.

Money for both budgets is now in the state budget, the agencies will need to submit required applications before it is released, however.

Beaubien received assistance in getting the two measures funded from veteran state representative Verna Clayton (R-Buffalo Grove) and state senator Bill Peterson (R-Prairie View).

Lackluster

Lake County Republican interest in the annual Jim and Brenda Edgar "Summer in the City" bash is lukewarm this year. The Guv and his bride sent out first name invitations for a Chicago area fundraising fling. This year's event, the seventh, will be Wednesday, June 25 at the United Center. The coolness stems from Edgar's plan to raise income taxes for education. Notice that the county GOP legislative delegation stood fast—against Edgar.

Primary speculation

And speaking of the Guv, look for him to get plenty of party support in a bid to run for U.S.

Simpson:
"Doing a fair job"

Senate, because suburban Republicans won't be eager to support a reelection bid to the Guv's chair.

The school reform package and Edgar's downstate loyalties have angered collar county GOPers who don't believe the Guv has been acting in their best interest.

Secretary of State George Ryan is said to be the early favorite for the GOP nomination, if and when he decides to throw his hat in the race.

On the trail

And speaking of the Governor's race, Democratic candidate John Schmidt is planning a visit to Lake County, June 10.

Schmidt was Bill Clinton's top Illinois fundraiser in 1991 and is being touted as Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's choice for the state's top chair.

Doing a fair job

New Warren Township Supervisor Suzanne Simpson doesn't mind if anyone says she's doing a "fair job." Simpson is doing double duty these days, reorganizing township business and serving as chairperson of the Republican booth at the annual Lake County Fair July 23 to 27. Party Lines helps report Simpson's making great strides at both tasks.

Vanderventer:
"Golfing for dollars"

and only chairman of the Lake Villa golf day which includes a dinner-dance for the $55 tab.

On the links

Mary Ellen Vanderventer, Lake County Recorder of Deeds, will hold her second golf outing fundraiser, June 18 at Orchard Hills Golf Course in Waukegan. Individual entries are $75 with foursomes being reserved for $300. The event will be held rain or shine, James Small is organizing the second annual event. For more information call, 731-2524.

In town

The Lt. Guv has made two appearances in the Chicago area this week. Monday night, Bob Kustra was in Libertyville to present MainStreet Libertyville with a national award for their revitalization efforts. Friday, night he kicked off a drug abuse town hall meeting at the Hyatt Regency in Chicago.

Etiquette lessons

The fight over the potential nomination of Dick Raftis to the Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals has some county board members wondering if others amongst them need a etiquette book for dealing with each other in a professional manner.

manager of the Farm Bureau and once the land-speculator's staunchest ally on the County Board, lost his seat last year in a thundering 2 to 1 rejection by Republican voters in his district.

Many people find it hard to understand the arcane language of the zoning code. But the politics behind a key appointment to the ZBA, which will have much to say about how the county's remaining unincorporated land is developed, are simple to grasp. The people of Lake County can recognize cronyism and special-interest politics when they see them.

Dropping like flies

The northwest side of town has a new subdivision. KLM Builders are constructing The Woods of Antioch. Maybe it should be renamed, "The Dead Woods of Antioch."

In my opinion, little care was taken if any, during the construction of these homes in the wooded areas. Now that these homes have been up for awhile and owners are getting settled, it seems that several of the big beautiful oak trees are dying.

The residents that build here paid a very high premium for these lots and did so to have these big Ogrin on way to $1 million?

Two weeks ago millions of sports fans tuned in their TV sets to professional golf from Fort Worth, Texas, mostly to watch the phenomenal Tiger Woods, of course.

But Tiger had to share the tube with David Ogrin, the Waukegan golfer who now lives in San Antonio. Ogrin shot into the lead with six consecutive birdies en route to a spectacular 62 and suddenly became the center of attention.

If Ogrin, now 39 years old, becomes a major star he will be a popular one. He is witty, gives reporters excellent quotes and "is having fun out there," as the TV commentators keep pointing out. He flashes a ready smile and enjoys bantering with the galleries.

Here in Lake County, and down there in Texas, Ogrin has ready-made fan clubs. He went from Waukegan High School to Texas A&M on a golf scholarship, so thousands of Texas Aggies are David's answer to old Arnie Palmer's Army.

Ogrin married a Texas gal and they have four little Texans, ages 4 through 9.

In the cover article of the February issue of Texas Golfer magazine (which I wrote, incidentally) the editors noted that "Ogrin's flashes of brilliance during the early part of his professional career went largely unnoticed. Only recently has he become a recognizable, and respected, figure on the circuit."

And just a few years ago his career was on the ropes. In 1991 he earned only $8,000 while spending $60,000 traveling to 30 tournaments.

He rebuilt his game over the next three years with help from some of golf's best teachers. Last October, after 14 years on the tour and 405 tournaments, he scored his first official victory in the Texas Open in San Antonio, his adopted hometown, finishing two strokes ahead of a charging Tiger Woods. The victory was worth $216,000 and Ogrin ended the year with $537,000 in earnings.

THE PFARR CORNER

This year he already has won $335,000 and his goal is $1 million. In Fort Worth he eventually wound up second behind David Frost and a stroke ahead of Tiger.

"I'm a member of the Tiger Killer Club," he jokes. "There aren't too many members, actually."

While matching shots with the amazing Tiger, Ogrin chirped to a television guy, "This is fun."

Recently he told me, "During the Texas Open last October, one reporter took a backhanded swat at me, calling me a feel-good guy, just chuckling and yucking it up, having fun on my way to victory."

"Well, what the heck else are you supposed to do? If you go out there sour and dour, and worry about the mechanics of things, then you're not enjoying golf."

He feels many golfers get "too deep in the figuring-out process. I think once you reach adulthood your golf swing isn't going to change much."

As for himself, he says, "I cast aside the never-ending search for technical perfection and pursued playing perfection. I now play each shot in the present tense and let the numbers take care of themselves."

David's mother, Bertha, told me, "If you ask him about a bad shot, he says he only thinks about the good ones. He's ever positive, never negative. He's just very confident within himself; he was like that even as a kid."

She laughed and added, "I always thought maybe he would be a good priest."

Helander keeps distance

A recent election lawsuit filed against Waukegan's Mayor Bill Durkin by defeated candidate Newton Finn, charges that the absentee form issued by Lake County Clerk Willard Helander is wrong, and therefore disqualifies the disabled voter's ballot. This suit is based, in part, on a case from 1991.

Helander campaigned on being a lawyer and bringing that knowledge and expertise to the office of County Clerk. She took full advantage of an absentee lawsuit against former Waukegan Alderman Robert Evans, stating that she would "clean up" absentee voting procedures. She even held a press conference on the subject of absentee voting with Rep. Andrea Moore and Sen. Adeleine Geokaris. To date I don't see that she has attempted any changes in this process. An oversight?

Thus far, Helander hasn't had any qualms about changing other policies and procedures put in place by her predecessors. Helander's response has been that this is the same form that has been used for 20 years, an obvious attempt to exempt (and distance) herself from an error made by her administration that has manifested itself in this lawsuit.

Discomforting rift

It is my personal opinion that most of the appointments made by County Board Chairman Grever have been comprehensible to a lay person like me. However, the probable choice to appoint Dick Raftis to the Zoning Board of Appeals is where I draw the line.

After three years of listening to Planning, Building and Zoning meetings chaired by Raftis, I observed numerous decisions being made without respect or consideration to the current and future residents of Lake County.

Kim Eudy

County let down

The Lake County Board's Planning and Zoning Committee has let the people of the county down.

Instead of exercising its right to seek out good candidates to fill a vacancy on the Zoning Board of Appeals, discuss their qualifications, and recommend one to the County Board chairman, the committee has twice wimped out. Not only have its members refused to even discuss the appointment, as the county's zoning ordinance calls on them to do, but they refused to consider a candidate with superb qualifications, a reputation for fairness, and no political baggage: Colonel Charles J. Lucas (U.S. Army, Ret.) a current member of the Regional Planning Commission whom County Board member Sandy Cole brought to their attention.

On Monday, June 2, the behavior of P and Z chairwoman Pamela O. Newton was especially disappointing. When Larry Leafblad moved that the committee reconsider its previous refusal to evaluate candidates for the ZBA, Carol Spielman seconded his motion. At that point, Newton abandoned her "neutral" stance, danced a convoluted rhetorical two-step, and talked Spielman into withdrawing her second. Newton need not have worried, since the other members present, Angelo Kyle and Robert Buhai, clearly had no intention of bucking Chairman Grever, who sat at the other side of the table, tapping his foot nervously. But had the motion resulted in a 2 to 2 vote, Newton would have been forced to break the tie, forced to show her colors.

Grever had caused Newton's dilemma several weeks ago by announcing his intention to appoint Dick Raftis, their mutual buddy and former County Board colleague, to the ZBA position. This wasn't surprising, since Lake County's old-boy political machine (of which Grever, Newton, and Raftis are members-in-good-standing) always takes care of its own, even in defeat. Raftis, beautiful trees.

Several residents have contacted KLM and inquired what they plan to do to remedy the problem. Well, it is too late to repair the damage already done.

Now, it seems as if the owners of these homes who paid big bucks to have these big beautiful trees will have to pay big bucks to remove and replace them as they die.

It's not fair and KLM builders should be responsible for removing these trees and replacing them with the biggest trees available.

The village of Antioch who is reaping big tax money from these new residents should make sure that they do.

What business is it of Judy Martini of the Lake County Board? She helped increase fee stickers which the agency didn't need.

Board likely to approve Raftis ZBA appointment,

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

The pending appointment of Richard Raftis to the Lake County Planning and Zoning Board of Appeals, has become a heated issue amongst county board members, who are divided as to whether or not a former member should be appointed to a volunteer committee.

First-term County Board Member Sandy Cole (Dist. 11-Grayslake) called County Board Chairman Bob Grever on the appointment in the May regular meeting and made an appearance at the county's planning, building and zoning committee Monday to request the committee consider "another qualified candidate for appointment" and make a recommendation to Grever.

Cole has suggested Grayslake resident Charles J. Lucas as an alternative candidate for the post. Lucas is a retired U.S. Army Colonel who has served on the Grayslake Zoning Board of Appeals and as a Grayslake trustee for 28-years. He has also served as a member of the Lake County Public Works Advisory Committee, Lake Michigan Water Commission, and Solid Waste Commission and currently a member of the Lake County Planning Commission.

While some county board members are applauding Cole for her efforts to object to an appointment and follow-up that objection with a qualified candidate for the position; others say she is "paranoid" about Raftis' appointment because she defeated him for election to the seat by a 2-1 margin.

The committee refused to consider making a recommendation on the appointment of Lucas, Monday. Larry Leafbald (Dist. 6-Highland Lake) made a motion to consider the appointment, but it failed for lack of a second.

"We did not consider the appointment and we as a committee did not make a recommendation on the appointment of Dick Raftis, either," said committee Chairman Pamela Newton (Dist. 18-Vernon Hills).

Under County ordinances, the committee could choose to make a recommendation to the chairman on the appointment, but Newton says following clarification from Assistant State's Attorney Mitch Hoffman on conflicting statutes between the state and county level, the committee decided it did not want to consider such appointments. According to Newton state statutes indicate the board chairman should make the appointments and present them to vote by the full board. At which time, any member can vote against the appointment.

"We decided as a committee we do not want to choose the jury so to speak," Newton said. "The committee said they felt it was improper to pick the jury that reports to them."

Other county board members are critical of the seven-member committee's stance.

Cole was accompanied at Monday's committee meeting by County Board Members Martha Marks (Dist. 21-Riverwoods) and Carol Calabrese (Dist. 15-Libertyville). They believe the committee has "the authority and an obligation to review nominations."

The three board members have expressed concern that Raftis' "pro-development" stance and occupation as leader of the Lake County Farm Bureau, are a conflict of interest for the job of serving on the zoning board of appeals.

Newton says she doesn't understand the basis of that objection to Raftis' appointment because the zoning board of appeals is a non-policy making position.

"As a member of the ZBA, he will rule on citizens appeals, not set policy," Newton said. But she agreed, the ZBA is an influential committee.

Raftis, who served one-term on the county board and was the chairman of the planning, building and zoning committee, began work on the county's soon-to-be-unveiled unified development ordinance. Prior to serving on the county board, he served as a member of the ZBA.

Newton was also critical of the stance that because Raftis had been defeated by voters, he should not be considered for appointment to the ZBA.

"We have other former board member serving on county committees such as Colin McRae, who is on the board of health," Newton said.

But, those critical of Raftis' appointment say the role on the ZBA is too critical to the future of the county and deserves additional scrutiny.

The chart above compares the benefit to Lake County under Governor Jim Edgar's proposed school reform plan and under the House Republican's proposed plan. Neither plan was approved. Edgar's plan did, however, pass the House on a vote of 62-56. Republican legislators hope to revive their plan in the fall veto session.

SCHOOL: Reform plan goes down drain

The increased revenue of $1 billion is based on actual receipts of $858 million in new revenue as of May 16.

Under the House Republican Plan, which was estimated to cost $630 million, $164 million was to come from new revenue growth.

"The state is experiencing tremendous growth in new businesses and exports," Churchill said. "We proposed drawing on that money to help fund education."

Other sources of funding for the House Republican Plan included: $200 million from a 30 percent increase on cigarette tax; $100 million for a 1.25 percent increase on message tax; $70 million for a graduated riverboat tax increase and $71 million from the budget reallocation.

There were three plans put forth by legislatures on the issue of school reform: The Edgar-Madigan plan; the House Republican Plan and the Senate Republican Plan. Each of the three plans had similar aspects including:

- Raising the foundation level of general state aid per pupil. Plans varied from $4,100 per pupil to $4,500 per pupil.
- Providing funding to each school district in the state for construction. Amounts varied from $0 per school district depending of wealth to nearly $10 million.
- Providing property tax relief
- Instituting teacher reforms in the tenure system and educational standards for teachers

"The plans were about 70 percent similar," Churchill said. "We should have been able to reach compromise, the only real sticky point between the plans was the Governor's insistence on a personal tax increase. He was unwilling to talk." Neither the House Republican or Senate Republican plan called for a personal income tax increase.

The Edgar-Madigan plan was the only one to pass a branch of the legislature—it passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 62-56 with seven Republicans voting for the plan. The House Republican plan was killed in the Senate Revenue committee and the Senate Republican plan was killed in the House Revenue Committee.

Churchill believes taxpayers throughout the state should be angry the legislator was unable to come forth with school funding reform during the spring session.

"We waited and waited for a plan from the Governor's office and we got that plan May 23, the deadline for the session," Churchill said. "We still could have gotten the job done, if the Governor had been willing to sit down and negotiate with the House and the Senate, but he wouldn't budge on the issue of a personal tax increase and Republicans in both branches were unwilling to consider any measure that include a personal income tax increase. You ask the voters for money when the economy is doing poorly, but when you are fat you don't."

Other similarities between the House and Senate Republican plan included the elimination of the double whammy for schools, where they are penalized for increased EAV by receiving less in state aid and hold harmless, which means no school district would receive less state aid this year than in did last year.

State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) said the Governor offered a downstate plan.

"In Lake County, in particular, we understand the importance of improving schools throughout the state, but this (the Edgar plan) was a weak plan," Moore said. "Residents in Lake County might have accepted a slight income tax increase if they were getting money for construction of schools but the Edgar plan was not it."

Lake County legislatures are cautiously optimistic school reform may yet be addressed in the fall veto session.

"I don't think the governor will call a special session over the summer, unless he believes we can pass reform," Churchill said. "The only way we can do it is if he is willing to change his mind on the personal income tax increase. Calling a special session and not achieving the goal would be a great embarrassment to all of us."

CLC Board installs new student trustee

Jason Johnson of Grayslake was installed as the 1997-98 student trustee at the College of Lake County board of trustees meeting last night. He will replace outgoing student trustee Constance Lynn, whom the board recognized with a resolution.

A psychology major with a 3.5 grade point average, Johnson is the immediate past president of the CLC student senate. He was recently recognized by the United Way of Lake County as a nominee for the "Youth Volunteer of the Year" award for coordinating the college's "Make A Difference Day" last October.

In other news, the board recognized three CLC award winners and nominees for the statewide awards sponsored by the Illinois Community College Trustees Association. They were Ken Simonsen (Mundelein), a humanities and philosophy instructor, winner of Outstanding Faculty Member Award; David Boyke (North Chicago), a physics instructor, winner of the Distinguished Alumnus Award; and student Lynne Cassell (Woodstock), winner of the Paul Simon Student Essay Contest titles "How My Community College Has Changed My Life."

In other matters, the board passed a resolution honoring Glenn Keuss (Lake Villa), an engineering instructor and coordinator of mechanical engineering technology, who is retiring after 27 years of service at CLC. The board also adopted a resolution recognizing the services of retiring 26-year psychology instructor Donna Raymer (Highland Park).

Natural law—stronger than gravity

Recently, I watched Tiger Woods win his first Master's golf tournament. Though he can hit the golf ball high and hard, gravity always won. Gravity brought his ball back to earth and stopped it every time. Gravity is a natural law.

There are actually two types of laws in this world: man-made and natural. Man-made laws protect our rights, guarantee freedoms and keep others from abusing us. We created these laws with the hope that we could live together peaceably.

Some folks—and I'm one of them—believe that God created the natural laws. These laws include the law of gravity, like begets like and the law of increasing returns.

You many never have heard of the law of increasing returns, but it is just as valid as the law of gravity. You can watch the effect of gravity and you can see the law of increasing returns in many areas of human endeavor.

I learned about the law of increasing returns when I read a book titled "Law of Success," by Napoleon Hill. He wrote, "Render more service than that for which you are paid and you will soon be paid for more than you render. The law of 'increasing returns' takes care of this."

Once I became aware of this law, I saw its results in other's lives. For example, my eighth grade teacher Mrs. Elgiva McCracken, practiced this law. She gave us much more than she was paid for.

I'm sure she never received monetary compensation equal to her worth in the classroom. Therefore, you might think that the law of increasing returns didn't work for Mrs. McCracken. After all the law says, "... you will soon be paid for more than you render." Mrs. McCracken didn't receive her pay in money. She was paid in love, respect and admiration.

Thousands of us are living more productive and successful lives because of her efforts. We all love and respect her memory. Somewhere in Heaven, I'm sure she's smiling as she watches me write this. (She's probably still checking my grammar).

Another good example of this law is our retired family physician, Dr. Alva Walker Eitel. She labored many years taking care of folks in rural North Missouri. She worked long days, made house calls and wore out several automobiles on muddy roads. Some couldn't pay, some wouldn't pay, but she cared for us all.

Dr. Eitel retired well, but if you asked her today I'm sure she would tell you the money wasn't all that important. The love and respect of those she served is a much greater reward than a mountain of money.

Deliver more than you promise and your customers will pay you in loyalty and positive referrals. Pro

Gerber's Ficken receives top award

Ficken: No stranger on the award scene.

Grayslake resident, Bill Ficken, has won the National Manufacturer of the Year Award as a member of the top management team for Gerber Plumbing Fixture Corp. The award was given by the American Supply Assn.

Gerber is no stranger on the award scene since Consumers' Report, a leading consumer magazine, has also named Gerber's ultra flush toilet No. 1 in its field.

Women in the manufacturing field, especially those concerned with making the best plumbing fixtures in the business, are a comparatively new innovation, one in this case brought about when Harriet Gerber, daughter of the company's founder, Max Gerber, assumed the helm of the company in 1953 after her father's death, steering the manufacturing company through decades of financial and marketing growth that helped to increase the plumbing manufacturer's annual sales volume ten-fold, from $7.5 million, to approximately $114 million at the end of 1996.

In 1997, Gerber is still the same family owned and operated business that Max started in 1932, despite being an inexperienced Polish immigrant. For years, Harriet Gerber Lewis shared the responsibility of heading the company with her brother Oscar L. Gerber and her husband Maurice L. Lewis.

Harriet's value to the company has always been much more than the proverbial lady plumber named Josephine, depicted in TV commercials by child star, Jane Withers, especially since she is the only woman to have been elected to the National Plumbing Hall of Fame.

Furthermore, she has become a successful independent player in an industry that is traditionally a male domain, one dominated by well-known names with substantial corporate resources and affiliations.

With its corporate headquarters still located in the Chicago area, in Lincolnwood, the Gerber Plumbing Fixtures Corp. of today operates five factories in Indiana, Alabama and

New Jersey, all an outgrowth of Max Gerber's original retail plumbing store that was the foundation of this plumbing dynasty, originating on Chicago's northwest side in the 1930s.

Harriet was a mother and a homemaker when she took over the company, establishing a thread of family management continuity that lasted until today, when at 77, she has reduced her workload, while remaining an active and involved corporate chair.

That family continuity now involves a third generation, since her son, Alan Lewis has been named the firm's chief executive officer, and a daughter, Ila Lewis is the manager of advertising and marketing.

Harriet has long been known as a people's person who has always mixed compassion and concern for the people around her, which has always entered into her financial and legal decision making responsibilities, preferring to be on a first name relationship with employees and business associates.

Gerber's philosophy of operation is based on this strong family orientation with many of the company's 900 employees spending their entire careers as Gerber employees, often representing second or even third generation members of the Gerber extended family.

Despite the demands of the business, has always made time for deep involvement in the community and religious affairs, chairing the multi-million dollar Jewish United Fund campaign in Chicago, and the Chicago campaign for the Holocaust Museum, receiving the and Deborah Awards in recognition of these endeavors.

Besides being a leader in new product design, Gerber plants feature highly automatic production lines and the latest technology in recycling.

Worldwide distribution is given the company's product lines that include; ceramic disc cartridge single and two-handle faucets and valves marketed as Gerber Hardwater products, as well as traditional compression stems, and washerless faucets and valves. Gerber also offers a complete line of genuine vitreous china lavatories, toilets, lavatories, bidets, urinals and tanks, offering high performance and tasteful design to the homeowner at affordable prices.—

Schedule road construction projects

Lake County's Division of Transportation will resurface at least 15 roads, repair three bridges and install traffic signals at five intersections throughout the county this year.

In releasing the 1997 construction plans, County Board Chairman Robert L. Grever said that the scope of work is significant. "We're pleased to be able to take care of these needed improvements. We apologize in advance for the temporary inconvenience these projects will cause, but think that people will be happy with the results in the long run."

Public Service Committee Chairman Robert P. Neal said the projects are categorized into four areas: safety, maintenance, operations and capacity.

"Each year, we analyze our five-year highway improvement plan and put together a construction program to get as much accomplished as we can within financial constraints."

Neal said that projects worth noting include the re-alignment of Busch Road at Deerfield Parkway, and the widening of the intersection of Washington and Lakes streets. Some of the road surfacing projects are continued from 1996: Quentin Road from Route 22 to Old McHenry Road, and Butterfield Road from Winchester Road to Route 176.

Although the county will be doing this construction work, there is much more that remains to be done, officials noted. Division of Transportation Director Martin G. Buehler said, "The County Board endorsed a 'wish list' transportation plan in May of 1995, and we have identified projects totaling more than $112,000,000 that could be funded with a local gas tax. Without additional funding, progress on completing the wish list has stagnated."

Committee Chairman Neal agreed, adding that less than 2 percent of the wish list has been completed.

"We have only purchased one parcel of land on the advance right-of-way acquisition list, but more than 49 acres still need to be bought. There are seven miles of rehabilitation, 14 major intersections, five miles of road extensions, 25 miles of road widening and five park-n-ride lots left to do on the wish list. The longer the wish list is delayed, the longer motorists will sit in congestion."

"Until we get additional funding from the state, or the authority from the legislature for more local funding, we can only do so much," Neal said.

Specific wish-list projects awaiting new funding include an extension of Midlothian Road from Peterson Road to Route 137; the widening of Butterfield Road from Route 45 to Route 60; improvement of the intersection of Fairfield Road on Route 60; the major rehabilitation of various sections of Lewis Avenue from 137 to Yorkhouse Road; the advance purchase of right-of-way along Peterson Road from Route 45 to Route 60; and a park-n-ride lot in the vicinity of Lake-Cook Road on Route 43.

For more information about any Lake County construction project, call 362-3950.

Manpower, Inc. plans move to new, dryer Gurnee spot

Theresa Bartels remembers the fateful day of Sept. 26, 1996 well.

That is when Manpower Temporary Services lost its equipment and much of its office to a flood in downtown Gurnee.

"We have been trying to get back every since," Bartels said.

That mission will be completed this summer when Manpower opens an office in 6,000 square foot of the Grand Tri-State Office Park.

Manpower has offices in Mundelein, where staff relocated after the flood and in Waukegan.

Bartels said the term "temporary" has largely been replaced with "field staff" due to the changing nature of the industry. Major emphasis continues to be on computer training.

"Information technology has grown by leaps and bounds," she told a group of Gurnee business leaders.

Manpower, which also has an Amhurst Office park site, draws clients from Chicago to Wisconsin as well as Gurnee area.

Manpower's move is just one of many as commercial and industrial sector has picked up for a slowdown in new single family homes permits as Gurnee matures.

Permits of single family homes for the first four and one-half months is down considerably, a 60 percent drop-off, according to Gurnee Admin. James Hayner. Multiple-family permits is also down from last year, by 30 percent.

Among the new arrivals to Gurnee's commercial sector in various permit stage:

Starbucks Coffee at Gurnee Mills; Caribou Coffee; Hollywood Video at Gurnee Mills; Pip Printing expansion; an 88,000 square foot Paris Presents, a cosmetics firm; SuperWash at 760 Magnolia; Heath Foods Juice Bar at 3900 Washington; Pizzeria Uno as an outlet of Home Depot and more tenants interested in Stonebrook Commons at Hunt Club and Rte. 132.

US Cable customer service wins award

US Cable of Lake County has made a significant contribution to the growth of the cable television industry by providing a consistently high level of service to its customers. In doing so, the cable company has been honored with the National Cable Television Association's Seal of Customer Service Excellence for its performance.

This industry award is given to cable companies that meet the following criteria over a 12 month period:

1. Demonstrated commitment to the On-Time Guarantee Program by maintaining an annual minimum on-time average of 98 percent for both service and installation appointments. 2. Remained committed to providing customers with exceptional service in all aspects of their cable experience. 3. Met all FCC regulations for customers service. 4. Reported achievement to local government's franchising authority.

"No other industry is regulated for customer service standards," said US Cable director of business operations Donna Craft Reinoehl, "and this award represents the basic expectations of our employees job performance."

The FCC standards include answering the phone within 30 seconds 90 percent of the time during a normal business day, response to service interruptions no later than 24 hours excluding those situations beyond the control of the cable company 95 percent of the time and a 30 day notice of rate or channel change if the change is within the control of the cable operator.

US Cable will receive a certificate of achievement which is renewable once a year on the anniversary of the award date provided the cable company continues to meet and maintain the four criteria.

"We will definitely strive to provide excellent customer service and hopefully receive this award again next year," Reinoehl said.

NATURAL: Increase job security

vide extra value and your satisfied customers will tell others. Anticipate customer needs, then exceed their expectations and they'll be loyal. This is the law of increasing returns.

Unfortunately, many individuals find this process hard to understand. Some are lazy and do only what they must to get by.

They steal huge blocks of work time for personal gratification and think they are getting away with it. Since they receive their checks every week, it seems they are.

However, when hard times come, guess who goes first? Management releases the least productive and efficient workers first. When you practice the law of increasing returns, you increase your job security.

In normal times, this law improves your chances for pay increases, advances and additional benefits. Regardless of your position in life, if you give more service than that for which you are paid, you'll eventually get paid more than you're worth. It's the law.

Dear Search,

I have been working as a secretary to a V-P of a small company for the past 11 years. My salary is in the high 30's with no benefits except paid holidays. My computer skills are limited to Wordperfect which I taught myself when it first came out and my boss purchased our computer for the office. My typing speed is somewhere in the high 50 wpm range, and I have been the right hand to this sales professional for son long and now he is moving out of state. I cannot uproot my family and therefore I am seeking employment. The interviews that I have been on have resulted in 2 offers of secretarial employment with very reputable corporations, (names withheld). The problem is my salary. I am finding that both offered me a salary of $26-$28,500 but I turned them both down due to the low wages. Both corporations were surprised, they said, at my turning down the positions, but I need to hold out for more money which I am accustomed to. I don't feel I should settle for less. What is the going rate for a secretary with 11 years experience with only wordperfect? Am I being unreasonable? What do you suggest? Thank You.
J.K.—Libertyville

Dear J.K.,

No one likes to take a cut in salary if at all possible. There does come a time, however, with cases of longevity, where one can literally be priced out of the market this can easily be understood while employees usually receive increases in salary once per year, the raises after 11 years can add up, thus putting you in a salary catalog that exceeds current market. Currently, (depending on the level of secretary and excluding entry level), secretarial positions in our area range from $20-$30,000. My suggestion is to realize that there are companies out there that can utilize your talents and experience and not only offer you a respectable salary, but benefits galore, which of course you are not used to having. At this time I would suggest that you weigh out any and all offers with the benefit package looked upon as wages as well. The two corporations you mentioned (although I held out their names), are well respected when it comes to salary and benefits. While you are used to receiving only holiday pay for the past 11 years, you could now benefit from receiving benefits such as Medical, Dental, Vision, Tuition, 401K, profit sharing and so many other benefits out there that employers are taking advantage of to boost employee spirit and productivity. While you mentioned that you have turned down these two opportunities, perhaps the door has not slammed shut. It probably would not hurt to contact the individuals who made the offers to you and take a chance that the positions are still available. With a bit of explanation perhaps one can be yours. Let me know how it turns out.—Good Luck.

GABS

The Gabs is a versatile ranch house, adaptable to a variety of life styles and family sizes. The long roof line is augmented by a dormer for visual appeal. Directly to the right of the entry is the living room which has a vaulted ceiling and provides a lovely setting for a baby grand piano, or is equally well suited to entertaining.

The dining room is large enough to accommodate large numbers of people. For these occasions, the nearby family room makes it easy to spread out the goodies.

There is room for everything in the family room: a home entertainment center, desk, computer, couches and chairs, a table, or whatever suits your fancy. Adding warmth to this room is a gas fireplace.

The master suite has all the amenities, including walk-in closet, custom shower and a double vanity with enough space for a make-up center.

The roomy kitchen has all of the attributes that a conscientious host would consider essential. Amenities here include a center work island with a solar tube admitting daylight, a dishwasher and an eating bar.

Each bedroom has a basin of its own, allowing for quick sprucing-up and privacy. A shared bathroom has a sink and tub-shower combination.

The game room is located just off the kitchen/nook area, which allows for noise making that will not carry into the rest of the house.

The utility room offers extra counter space, two walls of storage cupboards, and utility sink which are located conveniently close to the nook, bedrooms and kitchen. The garage has enough space for three cars.

Q: Why does my veterinarian insist on heartworm testing and heartworm preventative if my dog only goes outside to go to the bathroom?
A: Heartworm disease is transmitted through mosquitoes. So just as you may be bitten watching TV or going out to the mail box, your pet may be, also. Heartworm is very prominent in this area, due to all of the beautiful lakes, fens, and wetlands, which are prime mosquito breeding areas. We are even beginning to find cats that are positive for the disease! Treatment for the disease is not only expensive, but very hard on your pet. Even though there is a very high success rate with the treatment, a small percentage of patients with heartworm disease may not be saved. With an annual test and monthly heartworm pill, you and your pet may avoid this problem. The chewy treats that you give your pet monthly to prevent this disease are relatively inexpensive. The reason your DVM insists on a test is because there is no other way to know if your pet has heartworm until it is too late, and permanent damage has been done to their heart and/or preventative, there must be a negative blood test or the preventative could cause serious problems for your pet. By the way, mosquitoes can bite on the nose, ear tips and lips of long haired dogs, so all that hair is no protection against heartworm disease.

Q: My pet stays in my house and yard and has never had a flea problem. Why should I need to buy flea preventative?
A: If you have never had a flea problem in your household you should consider yourself very lucky. We regularly treat animals that are not on a good flea preventative. Not only is it more expensive to treat fleas than prevent them, but it is also harder on your pet's skin and very inconvenient for you. Flea preventatives come in the form of a monthly pill or drops dependent on your lifestyle situation. We have found the products that are available through veterinarians to be very effective when used regularly and properly. With the high rate of development and new people coming to live in this area, you may not be as lucky in your future with a flea-free environment as you have in your past. Along with new people come their pets and not everyone keeps their pets in the back yard. We often have clients whose pets pick up fleas from their neighbors yards (fleas can jump 38 feet), rest stops along the highway, visiting relatives, forest preserves, and campgrounds/resorts where other pets with fleas have already come through.

PET OF THE WEEK SNOW

"SNOW" is an enchantingly BEAUTIFUL, pure white short hair cat. Just three years old, this charming green eyed spayed female recently lost her loving home when an elderly relative with allergies moved in. Bewildered by the loss of her family, this SWEET little girl is just longing to be picked up, held, cuddled and loved. Snow is a very DOCILE cat and she is EXCELLENT WITH CHILDREN. She was raised in a home with other pets and GETS ALONG WELL WITH GENTLE DOGS AND OTHER NICE CATS. Snow is as AFFECTIONATE as she is beautiful. CALM but PLAYFUL, she is a lap cat and when she is finished getting her beauty sleep for the day, she will be a constant companion and friend. Snow, like many white cats, is genetically deaf. But anyone who has ever been "owned" by a deaf cat can tell you that it's not a problem. Deaf cats adapt beautifully -- so well in fact, that no one ever suspects that my own white cat is deaf. Snow interacts normally with everyone, and she wants to be treated like any other cherished feline friend. We talk to Snow all the time. She may not hear the words, but she understands that language of love. If you'd like to be a special cat into a safe indoor-only home environment, come and see Snow. Take her in your arms, and we promise she'll find her way into your heart as well.

TODDY

This is little "Mr. Personality". He's neutered, to date on shots and under two years old. This little guy is a terrier, with a short coat of white, with some black and brown spots. The short coat makes him easy to keep groomed. He'll do best in an adult house hold, since it seems he may have had some bad experiences with children. He was adopted once, but was sadly returned by the older adopter, who suddenly had relatives move in permanently, including one who very much disliked animals, and made it plain that the dog was to be gotten rid of one way or another. Todd is very clean, and extremely affectionate.

The ASSISI ANIMAL FOUNDATION welcomes adult volunteers who love animals and can give just an hour or two any morning of the week to help in their care in cheerful, cageless no-kill surroundings.

You are also invited to take part in the SPRING WALKATHON on June 22, followed by a pot luck picnic!

"YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO DOWNTOWN TO SEE GOOD BLUES!"

Chicago has long been known as the home of blues, but now Lake County can lay claim to the area's hottest blues band, "3 R Degree."

Made up of all Lake County residents, 3 R Degree is a "down to earth" group of musicians whose passion for the blues is quickly detected on stage.

Last weekend at Toppers in Antioch, 3 R Degree treated a packed house with a blues show that was second to none. The band's popularity in the area continues to grow.

"We started the band for fun a couple of years ago and it has really started to take off," said bass player Dennis Lambert.

Rooted in the far north suburbs, 3 R Degree is highly regarded in the northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin area. In addition to playing local clubs, the band was recently flown to the Orlando Convention Center, before returning for a show in Chicago at Dick's Last Resort.

"It's fun playing on the road, but what we really enjoy is playing Lake County," said Lambert. "Lake County loves the blues and they are definitely the best crowd!"

The band consists of John Walsh of Gurnee; Debbie and Dennis Lambert of Ingleside; Donna Huber, Ed Rowe and Gus Stage of Round Lake and Ken Johnson of Naperville.

Upcoming dates for 3 R Degree are Marriott Lincolnshire on May 2 and 3,
The Brat Stop in Kenosha on May 9 and 11 and July 11 and 12, The Greenleaf in Gurnee on June 21 and Taste of Antioch on July 18.

Age 85, a familiar resident of Grayslake for the past 41 years, finished his earthly pilgrimage and was ushered into the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ on Sunday, June 1, 1997 and as was fitting, shortly before Church service was to begin at St. Andrews Episcopal Church, where he was a devoted member of the congregation and sang in the choir for over 40 years. He will be greatly missed by Dorothy, his beloved wife of nearly 48 years. The consummate father figure and friend to so many—Lynn was an avid golfer and a familiar figure on the links of Renwood Country Club. Afterwards, working as a Field Approval Engineer for the Honeywell Corp. for 42 years.

He also will be greatly missed by his two loving children. Pam and her husband, Mike, live in the Denver area, where Mike serves as a Deputy Chief of the Denver Fire Dept. His son, Lynn III and his wife Renee, and their two children who continues to reside and serve the Grayslake Community as Associate Pastor of the Living Waters Assembly of God Church. The "apple of his eye" were his two grandchildren, Allison, who is seven and Joel is four—who will greatly miss their "Grand dad" and their trips together to feed the ducks.
